Lake Forest's New Depot.

True to its general policy the Northwestern railway folks have "done one better" at Lake Forest than they did here a year ago, a their experience here taught them some things. While the general style of the two structures is very similar they are not duplicates. Ours is finished in oak, natural color, theirs is oak, so dark a brown as to be almost black. Their ladies waiting room is smaller and more cozy in appearance; their chairs are more stylish, two lines of sittings are upholstered, one is dark leather for the men's waiting room and one is green plush for the ladies. The floors are tilings with a sub baseboard of Tennessee marble, so the floors can be flooded if necessary in washing. The ladies waiting room is well supplied with magazines and papers, an experiment, which we think will soon run itself out.

Their subway is a great improvement over ours, in that, like the Chicago tunnels, it is lowest midway and the floor is laid on an oval crown with little gutters on either side, so that all leakage runs off. The porte cochere landing also is on a level with the depot floors and large and roomy. The steps into the subways are two-inch slate and will not warp up like our oak ones.

The shelter station on the west side is much smaller than ours, while the shelters here are no more spacious than ours, but more elegant. The grounds are larger, with more trees, but they have no west side lawns as we have. The building and grounds are brilliantly lighted by electricity, though the building is all piped and lamped for gas if they wish to use it at any time. There is, we almost forgot to say, a news stand or room where papers, etc., will be sold.

W. A. Morgan continues, as he has been since "befo' the war," the urbane, capable and highly acceptable station agent. In fact Lake Forest would not be itself without him; anybody knows the town is safe and will be there in the morning, as long as Mr. Morgan holds the fort. He has capable and courteous aid in one Mr. Mauman, the operator, very bright young man who occasionally drops down to the Park of a Sunday evening when messages are few and far between. Altogether Lake Forest has reason to feel proud; the college town is now suitably equipped in this respect. Congratulations.

Meeting of the D. A. R.

On Monday, Nov. 19, the North Shore Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, were very profitably entertained by Mrs. Lasher, and no lowering skies or muddy streets could keep these patriotic daughters from the meeting. Most delightful music, both instrumental and vocal, was furnished by little Miss Roberts and Mrs. Burke. Interesting items were read from the last number of the American Monthly in regard to the work of the society in other states, and Mrs. Carver read a very interesting account of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Paris.

Mrs. F. B. Green was elected secretary to fill a vacancy. The other officers recently elected are:

- Miss A. R. La Bar, Regent; Mrs. R. W. Patton, Vice Regent; Mrs. W. O. Hipwell, Treasurer; Mrs. S. M. Millard, Registrar.
