Mr. James Bilharz, had an experience in the blizzard of last Sunday that he does not care to repeat. Mr. Bilharz had spent the day with the "home folks" in Waukegan, and started on the return trip to the Park via the street car line, reaching here at 12:15 a. m., after being compelled to abandon the street car at Lake Forest and take the Northwestern train.

"Agreen Christmas makes a fat grave yard" again seems to be true. Another to leave family and friends, is Mrs. John Rogan who died Friday at two o'clock. The bereaved husband and five little children, the youngest being twins and only four weeks old, are left to mourn for the departed.

Most of the young men have our five girls they go to see, but they have only one "one enough" girl. The girls who imagine a man in love with them because he calls a week, should remember that the chances are nine to one that they are not the "sure enough girl."

Miss Laura Muhle of Deerfield visited her sister Mrs. George Band, Thursday.

Valentine day is near. Dale Sweetland has a fine supply of valentines.

Many of the girls who are spending good money learning to teach school ought to spend a few dollars taking lessons in culinary art. It would be more benefit to them in future years

Prof. Sparks' Lecture.

Despite the chilling blasts and zero weather of last Tuesday evening, the lecture of Prof. Sparks, at the Baptist church was attended by a large and enthusiastic audience.

The Topic discussed was John Adams (the promoter of independence) and the speaker enjoyed the undivided attention of his listeners who seemed reluctant to depart, even after the professor had finished speaking.

Prof. Sparks makes of history a living, breathing reality and we are brought to realize and to feel a more lively interest in events now passed, but which are so closely connected with our present political and social conditions.

It was pleasant to see so many young people present and it was apparent that Prof. Sparks has made many friends among the younger people as well as their elders. They will remember him most gratefully for having placed at their disposal such a fund of valuable information in so delightfully entertaining a manner.

The Chicago Record says: "Mr. W. J. Bryan's paper, the Commoner, is out and the editor is once more in the profession which he left for a time. He come back to it a wiser and probably a sadder man. His sadness, if he has any, will soon depart, however, as the cordwood, the potatoes and the pumpkins come in, in payment of subscriptions. And then there is the annual joy of the county fair and the occasional free ticket for a column notice, to say nothing of the good friends always ready to help him edit the paper. Mr. Bryan will soon be a happy man."

Samuel Hole, Mary Clark, and Edith Lindstrom will argue for the former and Olive Haelele, Mayhew Wainwright and Lewis Pease for the latter industry.

It is the mission of a newspaper to publish such matters as may be of interest to the general public. It is also the mission of a newspaper to criticize the acts and sayings of public men, be they leaders of a political party, public officials or ministers of the gospel. Contrary to the ideas entertained by many, the editor of a newspaper does not always voice his individual sentiments in an article criticising the acts or saying of others. He feels the pulse of public opinion and generally gives expression to the verdict as returned by the majority. Just now the people of Barrington are aroused by a religious revival. Although our people are a God-fearing class, they do not all have the same idea of how the word should be interpreted. A man is not necessarily an atheist, an agnostic or an infidel because he does not believe the story of Jonah and the whale; he is not a scoffer of religion because he does not approve of excitement in religious work. The criticism extended by the newspaper is the reflection of opinions expressed by all classes, and injures no one or the good cause. Dr. Thomas once told the reporter, "never judge the religion of a man by the length of his prayer or the amount of noise he made," and I have found it safe not to do so.—Barrington Review.
