Highland Park Athletics.

Some years ago when indoor baseball and other winter sports were at their height of popularity, Highland Park was represented by an indoor baseball team. The team made a creditable showing but was handicapped by poor attendance at its games. After playing a few games it disbanded. Through the efforts of the athletic instructors at the military academy and high school the game was started up at these schools this season with great vigor.

There are many good players in the town and the impetus given the game this season has stimulated them into forming the "North Shore Indoor Base-ball Team." A schedule has been arranged and the best teams of Chicago and the vicinity will be played. If sufficient interest is shown, a hall of greater seating capacity than the academy and other halls formerly used will be rented.

The schedule already includes games with the Northwestern Military Academy, Highland Grays, Evanston High School Alumni, Racine College, and the "crack" Austin team. If the skill developed comes up to that expected, the champion Spalding team will be played.

There is no reason why Highland Park should not produce a fine indoor ball team. In every other branch of sport she has done well. As an example the recent successes of the hockey team of the Drumtochty rink might be cited.

It remains for the people to cooperate, and if given a generous support the team should be successful.

The young men who are now playing with the team are as follows: Arthur Purdy, George Millard, Harry Sampson, Frank Warren, Harry Evans, Ray Phillips, James Shields, Julius Balz, B. Harrington, and Arthur Cunningham.

Woman's Club.

A most delightful afternoon was spent by the members of the Woman's club on March 1.

The day was Mrs. Fessenden's and she gathered about her such efficient talent that "prizes" and "fairies" held charming sway. Mrs. Sampson recited "Tao O'Shanter" and the richness of Scotch dialect pervaded the air. Miss Helen Palmer rendered several musical selections for which she received the hearty applause of the club. Mrs. Everhart gave a reading of several poems regarding fairies and sprites, with grace. She blended a sensitive voice with the most delicate imagery of speech.

The discussion was rendered especially bright and interesting by the versatile remarks of Mrs. Clark. She was followed by several ladies who spoke in rapid succession.

Resolution

HIGHLAND PARK, ILL., To the Officers and Members of Highland Camp, No. 1176, M. W. A.—Your committee appointed at the last meeting of the Camp, to prepare resolutions of condolence through respect for esteemed Neighbor John Rogan, respectfully submit the following:

WHEREAS, An All-wise Providence has called, from the cares of this world the wife and helpmate of Neighbor John Rogan, and

WHEREAS, by her death her family and friends have lost an affectionate mother and a true friend and neighbor; Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Highland Camp, No. 1176, M. W. A. extend our heartfelt sympathy to her husband and children in their hour of sorrow; and further be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be adopted on the minutes of this Camp and a copy sent to the afflicted family, by the Clerk, under the seal of the Camp. Respectfully submitted, JOHN FINNEY, JOHN C. DUFFY, E. J. NOLAN. Committee on Resolutions.

TO BOURDENNETTE.

A MOUNTAIN STREAM.

Fair Dennett, by whose flowery banks My youthful footsteps strayed; And in whose pools and limpid tanks, My toilet oft I made.

Though to and fro, both far and wide My steps hath led since then; I long to hear thy rippling tide And roam thy fertile glen.

I fain would hear the speckled thrush Pour out her gushing song In hazel copse or holly bush; Thy verdant banks along.

As swallows—twittering as they go—Stoop to thy caresses; So fair laburnum bending low, Dips her golden tresses.

Capricious Dennett, wayward bourn, How changeable thy moods! A crystal stream, yet as I turn, I see but murky floods.

Just now I cross on stepping stones, But as I turn my head, The torrent sprite, in thunderous tones, Hurls boulders down thy bed.

As distance grows and time rolls on, Relentless—year by year; Thy beauties are more dwelt upon, Thy faults much less appear.

Not fretful ways nor pettish mien Can e'er thy charms efface; Should fate decree we meet again, I'll spring to thy embrace.

I'll quaff the cup I loved so well In days of "Auld Lang Syne;" 'Twill taste to me, I now can tell, As draughts of ruby wine.

Farewell Bourdennett, charming maid, And should this be our last, Content to have this tribute paid, I'll not forget the past.

J. A. CAIRNS.

The City, for the People.

Six hundred pages of fact and philosophy on public ownership, direct legislation, municipal home-rule, proportional representation, the merit system of civil service, the automatic ballot, and the best means of overcoming political corruption; such is the important book entitled "The City for the People," by Professor Frank Parsons. An appendix gives the text of the leading statutes and constitutional provisions on direct legislation, municipal ownership and home-rule, together with improved forms suggested for future legislation.

No question before our people to-day is of more vital interest than the problem of monopoly, and no presentation of the disadvantages of private monopoly and the benefits of public ownership that has come to our notice, possesses more clearness or force than that contained in the opening chapters of "The City for the People." Professor Parsons' articles in the Arena and other magazines have already given him a wide reputation as a clear thinker and vigorous writer, and his book shows the same depth and breadth of research and strength of presentation which characterizes his former work. We are sure that reformers and all who are interested in progressive ideas will find it a most useful book. The "Equity Series," 1520 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, is published by Dr. C. F. Taylor, who selects the subjects to be discussed and supervises the preparation of the books. His aim is education, not profit, and this book, 600 pages, crammed with facts and arguments, is sold for fifty cents paper or one dollar cloth.

We once Knew a Town... where part of the merchants undertook to increase their trade and get all the business they possibly could away from the other merchants by giving trading stamps. Of course the customers paid for the stamps in the long run, as more had to be paid for the goods, and the premium was paid for by the customers. We have always been glad Highland Park has been spared from such an affliction. We advertise with our home paper and keep the money at home, rather than give it to transient tramp schemes. If you want your book filled quick (we mean your pocketbook), and want to use economy in the collection of stamps (the kind the government gives) trade with the lowest price grocery store in this county. You will find first class goods at lowest prices at Mrs. Bock's Grocery, W. Central Avenue.
