The Bull Suit.

Judge Charles H. Baker's court will go down to history. He held court Wednesday afternoon in his court room on St. Johns north at 1 o'clock, p. m., in which a bull, a real live bull, of what breed we don't know, for Mr. Taurus did not sacrifice his imperial dignity enough to attend even Judge Baker's court in persona propria, but appeared by proxy only. The crime or quasi crime or misdemeanor of which the Taurus was charged in the indictment was that of running at large contrary to the statutes of the state of Illinois and the ordinances of the full-fledged municipality of the city of Highland Park, county of Lake and state aforesaid, in such cases made and provided.

The testimony produced in open court was extended and as varied as Joseph's historic coat. The court maintained his proper judicial dignity throughout the entire proceedings and finally with great solemnity declared said Taurus to be guilty as charged and ordered him to be sold to pay the costs of his keep by the city marshal and costs of the court, constable and newspapers, etc.

When Marshal Rudolph informed the Taurus aforesaid he turned his face to the setting sun and, imitating those historic bulls of Bashau, gave one fierce terrific bellowing, whose full orbed notes careened in graceful ricochets over the broad prairie of our empire state till observed by the limpid, listening waters of the meandering Mississippi.

Decoration Day.

The pupils of the public school observed, in a modest simple way, Memorial Day Wednesday afternoon. Messrs. Clark and Van Horne, with a boy, furnished the martial music, a snare drum and fife, which of course moved the children of all ages from five to seventy-five years. Mr. Van Horne was an old army musician and played for the children the very piece of blood stirring music which he played for our boys in blue as they marched into the historic battle of Chickamauga.

Two of the boys recited "pieces," one Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg speech and the other an extract from Senator Thurston's speech of Nebraska, and they did it well, too. There was some double quartette music by the pupils, and all present sang "America" with patriotic vigor.

Simple as the services were they were valuable. We would like a "Catechism" of the war for use by the school children. One year take up the war itself, what it was for, what principals and issues it settled. Another year that of the great military leaders, war governors, statesmen, etc., and a third year the battles of the war, where and when fought, number of men engaged on a side, the losses, experience, etc. Such a course in American history would be worth something as a part of the children's education. We don't know whether that is according to the latest fad in the "new education" or not, but there is a heap of sense in it.

BROILERS FOR MARKET.

This is a Business That Pays Quite Well, if Conducted on Common-Sense Principles.

Some one asked, a short time ago, about rearing broilers for market. First, the breed. It seems from the various reports of broiler raisers, that Plymouth Rocks are almost the ideal breed for the purpose, the only objection to the Barred is the dark pin feathers, which objection does not hold good with the White Rocks. White Wyandottes are hard to beat, also. The idea is to get a breed that will stand forcing and will present a nice appearance dressed at the age you should market for broilers. The first day they are fed and, after that they should be fed every two hours during the day. The first week they should be fed rolled oats, millet seed and cracked corn, sweet milk, sand and powdered charcoal; the next week add a mash, and use a greater proportion of cracked corn; the third week and on until marketed, for breakfast feed cracked corn, then chopped raw potatoes. A meat mill is the thing for this, then chopped cabbage, next mash, and last a full feed of cracked corn. Before this last meal no more is given than will be eaten up quickly; if from any cause they fail to be hungry, miss a meal or two. This will generally bring them around all right. The last few feeds before marketing stir cotton seed meal and treacle (molasses) in the mashes; this is to give them the rich yellow color desired. At the end of the eighth week the birds should average almost, if not quite, two pounds each. Continuing this course, by 15 weeks they should make 5 1/2 pound roasters. It is impossible to get such results from mongrel stock, but of course, should you be compelled to use them, such feeding is bound to result in quick growth.—Emma Clearwaters, in Ohio Farmer.

PROFIT FROM HENS.

Those That Lay the Most Eggs When Prices Are High Are the Poultryman's Best Friends.

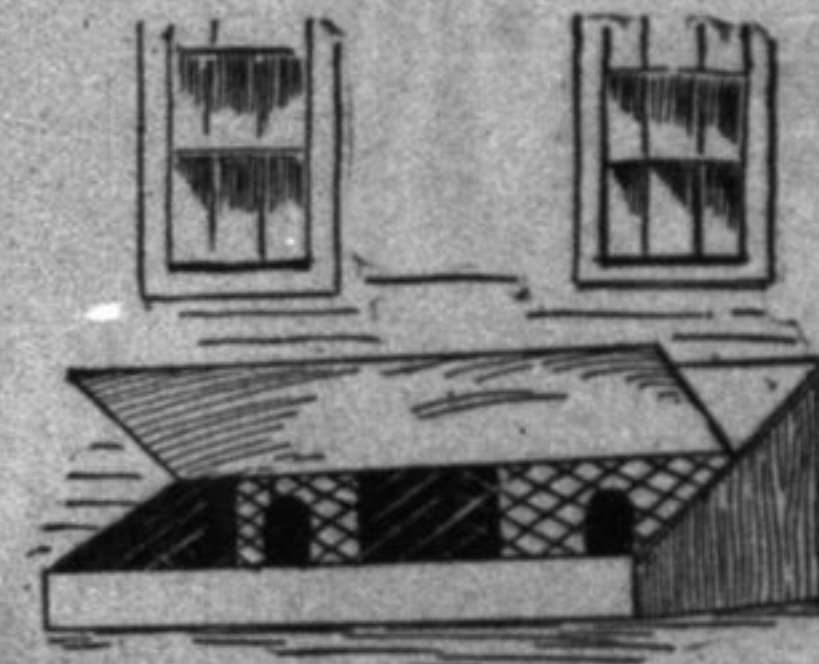

It is not an easy matter to know which of your hens are the best layers. Of course, some of the hens will lay more eggs than others, yet to find out which are the more profitable the record cannot cease with a few hens. Nor is the greatest profit derived from the hens that lay the largest number of eggs, but from those that lay the greater number when prices are high. There is more profit in two dozen eggs at 30 cents per dozen than from three at 20 cents a dozen, although the sum—60 cents—is the same for both lots, for the reason that the cost of two dozen is less than for three dozen. A hen may lay well from April to July, and apparently be an extraordinary layer because she lays an egg every other day, but after awhile she may do very little, and another hen that does not seem to be doing her duty, slowly reaches the number and still keeps on laying. The record should be, therefore, kept for a year, and an average for each month made. The best hens for the year should then be retained as breeders, from which to hatch the next season's pullets, and they should then be mated with a cockerel of a good laying family, so as to secure better progeny than the parents. The prices, number of eggs laid, number of chicks hatched and amount in value produced by each hen, should be noted, so as to assist in the selection with knowledge of the characteristics of each, and merit will be the guide.—Barnum's Midland Farmer.

TO GET OUT-DOOR AIR.

Poultry House Addition Which is a Good Place for a Winter Airing and a Summer Shed.

The device shown in the cut was recently seen on the south side of a poultry house, and was admirably fulfilling its mission of a place for a winter airing and a summer shed. It is easily and cheaply made, there being no glass in the top to add expense or get broken. The cover is turned back against the house on sunny days, when the fowls are practically out of doors. Built of matched boards such an addition will last for years. It can be used in spring as a run for hens and chickens.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Bones and Bone Cutters.

Bone for poultry is usually purchased from local butchers, the price depending upon the locality; sometimes it is given away. Bones may be kept a long time by subjecting them to sulphur fumes for half an hour in a suitable box having a lid. An old trunk serves well. Put the bones in, light a sulphur candle or a table-spoonful of sulphur, and close the lid. A bone cutter is almost indispensable to success, as bones greatly assist in making hens lay. It is not known which is the best cutter, as each has claims in its favor; but that a bone cutter will soon repay its cost is conceded by all poultrymen who are enterprising.—Farm and Fireside.

Do not wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50.
