Mrs. Ed. Ingalls of Elgin, a former resident of this place, paid her husband a flying visit Thursday before she started for the "Pan" where she will visit for about two months when she will return and make her home again in the Park, as "Ed." is the engineer at the water works.

Chas. Streiber, our enterprising contractor and builder, is erecting upon Elm Place a fine cottage with all the latest modern improvements, and F. B. Greens, baker, had it rented as soon as the foundation was laid.

The Yerkes fountain down on the Sheridan Road has been put in good repair. But why need vandals be all the time wrecking things there? We wish they might be caught and made to smart for their misconduct.

Waukegan is getting up surely in social matters. A few weeks since they had a "cousin convention" with all the sisters, brothers, cousins, uncles and aunts. This week the Baptists had a "pickaninny social," and next someone will have a "hulled corn and milk social."

Lake Forest is having a new brick freight north of the passenger station, and on the west side of the track. And, following the example of Highland Park, it is having a new subway farther north. The work of excavating is going on now. It looks now as though it would be a fine large affair.

Waukegan boasts a mayor who can run the city six days in the week, and his church the seventh or Sunday. During Rector Toll's absence from Christ's Episcopal church on his vacation Mayor Finer conducts the Sunday services. We guess that is a kind of apostolic succession that will stand the test.

John Moore, our former barber, removed to his old home in Libertyville a few weeks ago. That leaves more work for our other John Mohr, the barber, to do. Our John can give people a fresh bath as well as a clean shave and a fine hair cut, and this goes to show that he is the most enterprising man in his line the Park has ever had.

The Baptists had or were to have a meeting Wednesday night to discuss the matter of a settled pastor. We understand Prof. Whyte advises it and their feelings coincide. Just what was the outcome we do not know. The church is in a somewhat critical condition and we hope it will be led into such measures as shall best promote its prosperity. The religious good of Highland Park would be best promoted by the prosperity of all the churches.

Remember Dale Sweetland sells Thompson-Reid's Ice Cream in pints and quarts, or in large quantities at Chicago prices.

Judge Charles Baker awoke Monday to find himself ill, not so much so as to keep him in his room, but so as to make him feel cross and mean as he expressed it. Tuesday he was not much better and made himself conspicuous by his absence from the office most of the day. Wednesday it was ditto and so he sort of drags along. Like the boy's calf, he seems to "be gin out all over."

The Christian Endeavor society given at the Presbyterian church Friday evening was a decided success. The large number present were delightfully entertained with geography game.

A sort of traveling gospel tent has been unfolded on Sheridan road at Park avenue, and announces it will open on Friday evening. Divine healing and other new fangled id will be dished out to the sinners of the park—guess they will have a wide field to work on.

Our readers remember the dark rain clouds last week Friday afternoon and the one short, sharp percussive peal of thunder following a quick flash of lightning. That bolt leaped from the clouds, struck James H. Shields' house, knocking a hole through the roof, disturbing some plastering, frightening some summer residents a little and so found its way to the earth. Mr. Shields came home the next day, examined it and had the damages made good.

A few days ago we saw a load of household goods from Lake Forest moving toward Chicago on one of Wenban's drays. The Forest is a charming city, but it has no such unrelaxing grip on its summer boarders and summer residents. None of these folks think of leaving Highland Park yet, or in fact of leaving it at all. Autumn's chill winds and drizzling rains or winters piercing blasts and snow, blizzards can hardly start them. In fact the only way we can get them to leave is to set the dog on them. That is what city attorney Smoot's family pay the tax, keep and feed that N. C. Stubb's big dane dog for.

If you want to see a good job done on Central avenue west and see the new surface sewer, brick, two feet inside diameter on the north side, some places nine and one-half feet deep in the hard clay. Then at the city limits the town takes it and carries it on same size and style through the bank, then a deep open gutter to the slough. On the south side through the bank ten-inch tile. And then Mr. Hesler, who gives his time to it has graded the street in fine shape and will gravel it, so there will be a first class highway from Lake Michigan way out west. A very fine job all around.

City attorney Smoot and Clement are booked for return today. They are in such a place as North Fairfield, Vt.; was when we taught school there in the winter of 1855-56, where president Arthur was born, and where also there was but one mail per week, Saturday, about six o'clock p. m., and you ought to have seen the farmers flock to that store for their mail. That was the winter it took congress from Dec. 3d till Feb. 2nd to elect N. P. Banks speaker of the house. Well the Smoots are up in Michigan where there is one boat a week on Thursdays, it is off then or wait another week, as the walking is bad and the running is dangerous. Hence, their arrival is looked for today.

Rev. A. Haeefe returned from his vacation of two weeks in the north and northwest regions, reports a delightful trip of about 3,200 miles and feels greatly benefited.

Miss Alice Davidson leaves today for Topeka, Kas., where she is to act as secretary for the Young Women's Christian Association. Her many friends regret to learn of her departure, but know that she will not be long in winning her way to the hearts and homes of the Topeka people by her amiable disposition and various accomplishments.

Henry A. Coale and son returned Friday last from a ten days' trip to the Pan and New York. He says the show is big and well worth a visit to see, especially as railroad rates are low. He took along his picture, found awhile ago in a lot of waste matter, and experts pronounce it a genuine "old master" produced probably 400 years old. He will have it cleaned a little more and send it down there to be put on sale.

On Monday, at about 4 p. m., while an electric car was coming south under the E. J. & E. viaduct at North Chicago, a son of Michael Fearon of North Chicago, aged six, was sitting, on the fence, which is close to the tracks at that point. When the car was within 100 feet of him he jumped down and started across the track, when he stumbled and fell in front of the car, his feet resting on the rail. The car passed over him in this position, crushed both feet and bruised one side of the body. The child was taken to the hospital at Waukegan and his feet were amputated the same evening, but the unfortunate child died early Tuesday morning. However, Taylor summoned a jury for an inquest on Tuesday and an adjournment was taken to September 6th.

An amusing incident occurred last Friday afternoon at the post office. A lady went in and told acting postmaster King that she mailed a letter there some three weeks before from which she had heard nothing and evidently thought something was wrong. During the interview she told Mr. King she dropped it into the old pigeon hole, or outside letter box, under the window. He and Mr. Yates, with chisel, hammer, crowbar, canthook, etc., pulled off the top moulding fastened on with twenty penny nails, four of them six inches of moulding length, and there on the floor was the missing letter, and more still, several others were there also and had lain there so long that the gathered dampness had dissolved the government mucilage on the stamps and they fell off at once, and the letters were fairly black with dust. The carpenter who nailed up that letter slot put on a piece of board about an eighth of an inch too narrow, so that the letters could be pushed over its top. But there is the regular night and Sunday box right before their eyes with little door lid all lettered, and has been there over a year. Well, some people surely don't know any more than the law allows.
