Chapman, president of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, will preach in the Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening. All are welcome to these services. Mrs. Forsythe, in the Hazel Requa house on Hazel avenue, and Mrs. McLaughlin, in the Stockton house, are the happy mothers of some "little blessings," who came to their homes a few days ago. Hence they will prolong their summer residence among us for a time. This morning Mrs. George P. Everhart was greatly surprised when what appeared to be a band of gypsies drove up to her beautiful home, the "Miralago," and presented her with the following note: MRS. EVERHART, DEAR MADAM: Having heard of your lovely Spanish home, we would like to inspect the place if you have no objections. Deerfield friend or well wishers. Would you object if we ate our food on your veranda? It looks so pleasant like. Mrs. Everhart, who was every instant expecting the members of the "Picnic Club" for lunch, stood for a moment greatly bewildered, not knowing what to do; but as a woman well known for her hospitality, she did not want to refuse their request, for they did not look like the ordinary mendicant, in fact they were so elaborately costumed they gave her the impression of gypsy queens. While she was meditating as to her action toward them, one of the "queens" catching her eye, gave a smile which she recognized as belonging to Mrs. Lasher, the "chief" of the club. Mrs. Everhart then gladly received the other member, Mrs. Knox, Mrs. K. R. Smoot, Mrs. Tuttle, Mrs. Lasher, Mrs. Cobb, Mrs. Mariner, Mrs. Phanstiehl, Madame Gregory, Mrs. Lobell, Miss Lasher, Mrs. Gregory and Mrs. Montgomery. Lunch was served on the veranda as requested, and a most delightful time was had.

PUMPING OUT A SCOW.

It is the Easiest Problem the River Man Has—Just Pull the Plug Out and Ha... "Nobody who knows anything about boats worries over a few feet of water in a scow if the water isn't too deep," said a river man to a New York Sun reporter. "Getting it out is the easiest job in the world. "Scows, as everybody knows, are flat bottomed, and up forward in the bottom of every one is a plug as big around as a man's two fists. Dozens of empty scows fill up with water and lie at the piers with only the deck afloat every year. It doesn't hurt them. The owner just lets them lie so till they're wanted. Then he sends a tugboat alongside and she latches on. A man goes aboard the scow and pulls out the plug. "Does the scow sink? Nary a foot. As the tug starts her up you see she lifts the old scow up some, and the result is that the water in the scow pours out through the plug hole. It's hard pulling at first, but the faster the tug hauls the higher goes the scow bow and the quicker the water goes out, till the scow's almost dry." After a spin of a mile or so the plug can be replaced and the little water that remains in her pumped out by hand. "Simple? I should think so. Easiest thing in the world. That's why scows are so useful. You needn't be so extra particular about calking 'em so long as your cargo won't be hurt by water; and age and submersion seem to improve them."

A REFUGE FOR ROGUES.

Perfect Paradise for Men Who Have Committed Crimes of Every Description. There is one corner of Central America that is at present a perfect paradise for men who have committed any crime. It is a place where the outcasts of the world's society rule the land of their adoption, and where the officials of the government protect all thieves that come to them and make it dangerous for any detective to molest them, says the London Express. This is the republic of Honduras, one of the least advanced of the states of South or Central America. Honduras indeed is a curious mixture of jungle and gigantic forest, of cocoa and of rubber trees, of bugs, vipers, snakes and crocodiles—of all manner of things that creep and crawl and sting and bite; a region where life in the daytime is a mockery and at night one feels as though sleeping in red pepper. Here, in every hamlet and city, are to be found men from different lands, mostly outlaws from their own country. Chicago, Boston, New York and Philadelphia all furnish their quota. England, France, Italy and even far-away Russia have their share. They make no attempt at concealment, bear the names they were born to bear and go along about their own business as if the laws of their own country had not made them outcasts.

THE IRELAND OF TO-DAY.

More Prosperous Than Formerly, But Its Main Lack Is in the Manufacturing Line. Rt. Hon. James Bryce, a careful observer, and Mr. Seumas MacManus, the Irish writer, agree that Ireland to-day is enjoying comparative prosperity. The people are living better, their food is of a higher grade, the bank deposits have decreased, the farm rents are lower, and the returns from work are larger. The main reason why it does not take its place as one of the rich countries of the world is its lack of manufacturing. It exists mainly in its agriculture and its fisheries, says the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. Ireland contains 32,337 square miles, not including the 196 little islands which add 246 square miles to the total. It is not quite so large as Indiana, and is a little larger than South Carolina. The Philippine islands are four times the size of all Ireland. Less than five years ago a commission appointed by parliament reported that there had been placed upon Ireland a taxation burden which it was unable to bear, and that something should be done. Thus came the new land act, which was a mitigation, but not a reform, of the evils.

Find New Varieties of Fish.

President David Starr Jordan has returned to Stanford university from his trip to the Hawaiian islands, where he has been for the past two months conducting a thorough and detailed study of the fisheries and fishes of the islands under the direction of the United States fish commission. About 240 species of fish have thus far been collected and classified, 50 of which are new to science. A complete report of the laws and customs of the islanders relative to fishing is being made by J. N. Cobb, the statistician of the party. This information, together with the results of the scientific work by Dr. Jordan, will be embodied in an extensive report to the government.
