ABOUT THE SMALL POX.

Due notice is hereby given that we are going to be funny, at least not as funny as we can be. Some sensible people thought that our remarks last week about the doctors lining their pockets with shells was a thrust at the dispensers of pills and prescriptions. Now, we thought any dullard would see that it was intended as a joke in the midst of our dry epigrams, and we are happy to know that some of the profession, probably all of them, so took it, which shows that they have sense.

But another thing about that small-pox scare. We treated it lightly so as to not hurt the town, as some people feared it would get out into the wide world through the NEWS-LETTER. But the scare was real. There were two or three cases of genuine small-pox down in the Nolan family, living in the sick house on St. Johns avenue, half way to Idlewild. The board of health led in and he said the cases were of the old-fashioned kind, only somewhat mild in form. And the board has fumigated and thoroughly cleansed the house, so there is probably no more danger there. But any day someone may bring it into town, or someone may get it in Chicago, where it is much more common than the city papers acknowledge. It seems to be prevalent in lots of the cities and large towns in every state about us.

Hence, every one could be vaccinated for his own personal protection and preventing spreading it among others. The two members of Mr. Nolan's family who had been successfully vaccinated lived right through it all without harm. We almost every day, especially those who travel on the car, vaccination is the only safety.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of woman's preferences. Jewels for a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious, consequences of coughs, colds, bronchitis by the regular use of the Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at G. B. Cummings'. Get Green's Special Almanac. Cg-11-25

LINCOLN.

Next Wednesday will be Abraham Lincoln's birthday. He was born February 12, 1809, a year which witnessed the birth of many notable persons, as Gladstone, Mark Lemon, Lord Tennyson, Chapin, Kit Carson, Cyrus McCormick, Father Chiniquy, Charles R. Darwin, Fanny Kemble, Park Benjamin, Count von Beust, Prof. John Stuart, Blackie others. Hence, so to speak, he was in the swim for greatness and distinction.

Again, there was blood, not perhaps "blue blood," in his veins. It is a little common to speak of his mother with a sort of contempt. In herself, perhaps, she was not great, but she was in the line. She had antecedents, as Mr. Lincoln once said to his partner and biographer, Mr. Herndon. It "jumped" over one or two generations, skipping his mother, but came out in him. The farmers used to have a somewhat coarse, but "powerful" expressive saying to this effect: "You can't make a whistle out of a pig's tail"; you can't make something out of nothing. Abraham Lincoln was a product—he had antecedents and it seems that all the qualities of greatness in his remote ancestors focalized in him.

One of his most distinguished features was his rare and self-registering ability to rise up to the full level of emergencies as they came along, as a ship rides the waves, and always on the very crest thereof. Difficulties of all kinds faced him, sometimes singly and sometimes in seeming cohorts. Unsurmountable they looked as they approached, but as they came up within range he surmounted them. There was the emancipation proclamation. It perplexed and apparently baffled him for weeks and months, but when the full time came for it, the exact day and hour the clock struck promptly and accurately. Emergencies have wrecked thousands of otherwise great men—they just enabled Lincoln to show himself as he really was in his full grown giant stature to the nation and the world.

One moral trait of his character stands out to us above all others, his ability to bear abuse, opprobrium and falsehood in silence, to go down to his grave with unnumbered falsehoods, black and malicious as the bottomless pit, undenied misconceptions uncorrected, while calumny and reproach he bore in absolute silence. He was busy with a great work and could not stop to chase down lies. Place you a man who must have the last word alongside this much traduced and maligned, but silent uncomplaining man, and note the contrast. He was one of God's noblemen—the divine trademark was on him. Teach these things to your children and children's children to the last generation.

Bachelor—So you're married, eh? I suppose your wife saves you a good deal of trouble? Benedick—Well, she saves every little trouble that comes to her during the day so that she may bother me with it when I come home at night.—Philadelphia Record. Cg-11-25
