AGUINALDO. Ho, sing me a song both deep and strong, Like the thunder of the hoofs as they roll along! Let the music ride with a swinging stride. Like the gallop of steeds in their strength and pride, When they reach at their bridles and foam and go, For I sing of a nigger—Aguinaldo, Aguinaldo. Through the black shades of night comes a stamp and a beat. And the dark is a-clatter with horses' feet, With the rattle of arms as they wheel and pass. And the dull, deep thunder across the grass. Who rides by night when the moon is due? And the night owl answers, "Aguinaldo, Aguinaldo." His home is the Philippines' open face; His roof is the azure of endless space; He sleeps where he loosens his saddle girth, And his only bed is the good red earth, Such a leader of men—where will lie go? And he fights for freedom—Aguinaldo, Aguinaldo. Full many a time we have held him fast And have vainly boasted him caught at last; We have ringed him round with a ridge of steel And have dreamed he was lying beneath our heel, But the lion was up and after the doe, And was free again—Aguinaldo, Aguinaldo. He strikes us here with his troop today And tomorrow a hundred miles away; He sweeps, a wolf, in the wooded bush, And he carries death in his cartridge belt. He has sworn an oath, he will get his due And until death he will go—Aguinaldo, Aguinaldo. His name is a word we have learned to fear, When the clouds are thick and the night is drear, When the rain beats hard on the sodden sward And the wild beasts couch and the wind's abroad;

When the starless sky is as black as Oh! Then he rides on his errand—Aguinaldo, Aguinaldo. In the dead of night, when the camp's asleep, Though the sentinels guard and the rocks are steep. There's a shot in the dark, there's a sudden cry And the men run out from their tents to die. Who strikes by night when the moon is due? And the dead man answers—Aguinaldo, Aguinaldo. —With apologies to Bertrand Shadwell. Laugh, and the World Laughs. The following is the text of the poem which both Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox and Colonel John M. Joyce claim to have written: Laugh, and the world laughs with you; Weep, and you weep alone; For this brave of earth must borrow its mirth— It has troubles of its own. Sing, and the hills will answer; 'Sigh, it is lost to the air!' The echoes bound to a joyful sound, But shrink from voicing care. Rejoice, and men will seek you; Grieve, and they turn and go; They want full measure of all your pleasure, But do not want your woe. Be glad, and your friends are many; Be sad, and you lose them all. There are none to decline your nectared wine, But alone you must drink life's gall. Feast, and your halls are crowded; Fast, and the world goes by. Succeed, and give and it helps you to live, But no man can help you to die. There's room in the halls of pleasure For a long and lordly train, But one by one you must all file on 'Thro' the narrow aisles of pain. During February and March the drug stores of Highland Park, Ill., will be closed at 9 p. m., except on Saturday evenings they will be kept open until 10 o'clock. Geo. B. GLENCOE DEPARTMENT Sheridan Road News-Letter. W. W. HARRY, Local Editor. Mr. Harry is authorized to receive Subscriptions, Advertisements and orders for Job Work. Call on him for rates.

Ignatz Schweiger has opened a new boarding stable. A baby boy arrived at George Deitrich's home, Thursday morning. After six weeks of severe illness, Miss Olive Taylor is slowly recovering. J. Brandel died Monday, February 10. He was an old resident of Glencoe. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whipple were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Jacobs, Wednesday. The dance of February 6, for the benefit of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitz, proved a great success. C. Dopfer returned from Germany last Friday, February 7, and has brought his sister with him. He expects to start a business in Chicago. Ed Hill, foreman on the Bartholf residence, lost a $20 bill, Saturday afternoon, but the great Glencoe "hawkshaw," Billy Love, discovered it with his eagle eye, concealed in a bank of snow, and returned it to the owner. Thanks, William.

Glencoe furnished her share of citizens to the dance at Gross Point, Saturday evening, and the way some of them conducted themselves one would think they had a good time as well as liquid refreshments. One man in particular, when he left the bus at Glencoe, walked toward the lake instead of toward his boarding house; but he said the driver of the bus tried to tip them over and he thought it had turned his head. The "valentine social" given by the ladies of the Congregational church, on Saturday evening, was a decided success from a financial and social view. The young folks received many valentines (undoubtedly direct from Cupid), as all had "postage due, but the postage was cheerfully paid even by the old married people. Some of the finest confections were made by Mrs. Barnett. Mrs. Ben Newhall, as saleslady in the valentine booth, was a decided success. In fact each and every lady appeared to out-do herself in being an agreeable hostess. All enjoyed the speech by the dominie, Rev. Darling. A NARROW ESCAPE. Dr. Lane, our popular physician, was called across the "Skokie," Saturday evening, to see a patient, and hired our genial host, John Harry, to drive for him, as he had a very mettlesome steed. It was a sight never to be forgotten. Mr. Harry standing erect in the surrey, with hair on end, the reins tightly wrapped about his hands, trying to miss the "thank ye marms" on the Skokie. When they finally arrived at their destination and had carefully turned the horse homeward they made the startling discovery that the colored man had hitched up without putting the bit in the animal's mouth. Words fail to express their thoughts, for they were speechless, but the homeward journey was given to a general thanksgiving, each congratulating himself on his escape from broken bones and perhaps death by what appeared to be almost a miracle.
