

MAN'S BEST FRIEND.

The traveler's best friend is that queer little yellow boy named Lemon.

Go down to the nearest grocery and you will find him dressed in traveling coat of white tissue paper, all ready to start with you on your journey, and to do many a kindly deed for you.

In the first place, if you feel a little "out of sorts," and as though you can't put one foot after another, squeeze a little lemon juice into a glass of fresh water, drink it and feel refreshed.

Or, if you have a case of genuine malaria, when every bone aches, and you have a "brown feeling in your mouth," besides being "so tired" all the time, squeeze more lemon juice into fresh water—enough to make a very sour beverage—and drink freely of it many times in the day.

For this little yellow boy is a foe to a sour stomach, and always ready for a fight against indigestion.

If you have a throbbing headache slice a lemon and rub the bits over the brow and the pain will soon go away. If your hair is falling out, rub slices of lemon thoroughly into the roots and over the scalp, washing the head afterward with a warm soft water.

Squeeze lemon juice into milk, rub the mixture over the face and neck every night and you will rejoice in the fresh glow of your complexion.

Mix lemon juice and glycerine, rub your hands with it at night, and if you are not too nervous wear large old gloves and you will wonder at their dazzling whiteness.

When a bee stings or a wasp sticks a prong into your face touch the hurt spot with pure lemon juice. If you have a wart or a vexatious corn rub lemon juice on with untiring zeal, and bid defiance to mosquitoes with the touch of your little yellow friend.

A cup of tea is always improved by slices of fresh lemon and we all know how a well-mixed lemon squash can revive the weary stomach. If you go on a water voyage you must certainly take it with you, for pure lemon juice will rout all giddiness and seasickness.

And the little sour yellow fruit is as good as a doctor's help to cure sprains and bruises, or a lady's maid to remove brown freckles and red patches and sunburn.

These are only a few of the many friendly deeds of friend Lemon, and if you once try him as a traveling companion you will never again go away without him.

The individual who gets the fewest letters makes the most complaint to the postmaster; the man who never has a good meal at home growls at the hotel accommodations; the man who complains most of his neighbors is the meanest of the lot; the church member who pays the least to the preacher's salary finds the most fault and always complains of the bad management of the church; the man who never invests a dollar in town enterprise is the one who is always crying down public improvements; the loafer or no account workman is always to the front in strikes and labor agitation; and the subscriber that is the slowest to pay his subscription finds the most fault with his paper.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A few evenings ago that eminent politician, Charles W. Kirk, rode up to Lake Michigan on the sidewalk of course. Knowing as he does so well the pains and penalties provided by the city for such violations during the "closed season," and to prevent if possible Mr. Kirk and other politicians from falling into the meshes of the law, the judge pulled out some of the old notices against bicycles on the sidewalk and posted one of them up by his front door bell so that all could read it. It happened to be printed on red card board. One of our citizens saw it from the street and inferred the judge was down with a contagious disease and so reported in Highwood to the mother of the family maid. A few days later the maid reported one morning what her mother had told her of the citizen's report, but the mother had sense and the maid did not scare.

Now the judge finds himself in the soup and promises never to put up a red card again, even if Kirk et al. get fined to the full extent of the law.
