GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The largest class that ever graduated from the Highland Park school held its closing exercises on Tuesday night at the Presbyterian church. There were twenty-four in the class. These bright, happy girls and boys, seated behind a bower of green in the organ loft, made a beautiful picture in itself for an audience so large that it taxed the seating capacity of the church.

It was one of the choicest programs ever presented here. As has been said by many, it was the finest ever given and most artistic.

Mrs. Hugh McFarlane assisted the choruses at the piano, and the Highland Park orchestra, conducted by George B. Colburn, played a number of very happy selections.

Too much cannot be said of the magnificent work done by Miss Benson, who led the choruses so beautifully.

In fact, rarely do we see such care program of Tuesday night. The children certainly reflected great credit upon the school and its teachers. The work of the full chorus in "The Morning's Invitation" was brilliant. The girls' chorus gave that exceedingly rare and lovely thing, "The Dove," most artistically; and the boys, in their song, "Anchored," fairly captivated the audience.

The original oration on "West Point," by Terry Allen, of Fort Sheridan, delivered in characteristic boyish fashion, was delightful.

Little Ruth Simpson, who read an original essay on "The Occupants of My Desk" with all a little girl's wonted fervor, was charming.

A pretty feature was the "Echo Dell," a recitation in concert by eight of the girls.

The climax was reached, however when Joy Miller as Lady Macbeth and Lyman Prior as Macbeth gave a full scene from Shakespeare's play in a most dramatic, thrilling manner.

The few very fitting and appropriate remarks made to the class by Rev. Pfanzstiel made a very pretty close.

GLENCOE.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison Plummer have returned from Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ramsey are at Mrs. Fuller's for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Hill have again taken the Southworth cottage for the summer.

Rev. M. W. Darling and wife contemplate leaving this week for the east on a little vacation trip.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Russell, of Evanston, have taken the Woodford cottage, near "Skokie" links, for a year.

David A. Mayer, of the firm of Schlesinger & Mayer, and family are occupying the James L. High place, on Sheridan Road.

Miss Edith Hill has returned from Smith college, where she will graduate next year; and Fred Hill is home from the Worcester "Tech."

The chief event of the week was on Thursday, when in the morning semi-finals were played for Skokie cup, North Shore cup and Consolation cup. Afternoon finals H. Chandler, six up five to go, defeating W. R. Kimball.

The regular class day exercises of the Glencoe school took place on Thursday; the "field-day" exercises which the school will close its year's work, will be held at the Park on Saturday, June 28. A delightful program has been arranged, and the teachers and scholars are anticipating a wonderfully good time.

One of the interesting features of Glencoe is the "Mortimer colony." We find here in one block four families of that name. Mr. Mortimer, the grandfather, while an extensive owner of real estate in Glencoe, chose rather to have all his family within a near radius of his own residence, and has therefore erected for each of his three sons and their families very beautiful homes adjoining his own.

"OLD TIMES" PROTOTYPE.

The year 1877 was a somewhat memorable event in the annals of modern coaching, as on the 4th of November the "Old Times" was put on to St. Albans, and has run every lawful day since without a break, though not always on the same route.—Chambers Encyclopædia.
