MOTTO OF THE NEWS-LETTER.

Print all the news fit to be printed; the truth without fear, favor or affectation; pure, clean and wholesome matter; fresh ideas, progressive thoughts and reliable information; the opinion of the editor, fearlessly expressed—nothing false, loud or inmodest; nothing mean, low or slandrous; nothing for which we are not willing to become responsible; nothing personally offensive, as paid matter or otherwise; nothing that we would be ashamed to read at our own fireside. Print what we believe to be right, regardless of consequences; nothing we know to be wrong under any consideration.

FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1902.

We will speak out, we will be heard, Though all earth's temples crack.
We will not bate a single breath, Nor take a single sentence back.

Confident I may lawfully hold the office for the coming term, I hereby announce myself a candidate for County Clerk.

Approval of the County Republican Convention. GEO. N. GRIDLEY.

Mr. George P. Everhart on Tuesday last was taken to the Augustana hospital, where an operation for appendicitis was successfully performed. The operation proved of a far more serious nature than even the doctor had anticipated, but it was a great success, and Mr. Everhart is resting very comfortably.

Judging from the crowds on the trains and the bus relays Exmoor this past week has been the Mecca of all the world and his wife.
Indeed, notwithstanding the weather, it has been a week of high doings at the club. Great interest has been manifested in the Exmoor tournament now on—finals to be played Saturday. Five players from both the east and west have been attracted, and there has been some brilliant playing. H. Chandler Egan, who won two cups at Skokie last week, has fair prospects of capturing another trophy. The tournament for the president's cup will close on the Fourth with a stein dinner at the club.

MAGNETISM OF MISERY.

The Proneness of People to Return to Scenes That Revive Painful Memories.

Every storm, earthquake or disaster of any kind brings out a curious phase of human nature, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Many of those who have seen their houses destroyed or their nearest relatives killed return as soon as possible to the scene of devastation. In some instances this is explained by the fact that there are more opportunities of earning a livelihood among old neighbors than among new surroundings. In numerous cases, however, no such business reason operates as an inducement. The magnet is sentiment, not money. As some mourners devote every holiday to visiting graves, so a large fraction of the homeless and bereaved go back to spend the remainder of their days in the scenes that recall calamity and agony.

It was so after the great London fire, it was so after the Lisbon earthquake, it was so after the yellow fever swept Philadelphia; and in more recent years the Chicago fire, the Mississippi floods, Charleston Johnstown and other catastrophes confirm the old experience. Apparently the desire to gain new pleasures is not more keen than the wish to revive the memory of old pain.
Our late storm has destroyed much property and a number of lives; but we will see people choosing homes in sight of the telegraph pole from which the fatal live wire dangled, or the flooded stream in which the only son was drowned.

MOSQUITOES AND COLORS.

The Insects Are Attracted by Some Hues.

The anopheles mosquito, says the Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, is attracted by some colors and repelled by others. Experiments have been conducted in a gauze tent, one end of which was formed by large windows. Into these the sunlight poured on bright days. Large stone basins were placed near the windows for the mosquitoes to breed

It was immediately noticed that when a person entered the tent clad in dark gray clothes, the mosquitoes settled on the cloth. When the person entered was dressed in white flannel, they did not approach him.

A number of boxes lined with cloth of various colors were placed on the floor, and it was noticed that great numbers of mosquitoes entered the box lined with dark blue. Fewer of the insects sought the boxes lined with other colors, the number diminishing in this order: dark red, brown, scarlet, black, slate-gray, olive-green, violet, leaf-green, blue, pearl-gray, pale green, light blue, ochre, white and orange.
No mosquitoes whatever were found in the box lined with yellow.

The number of insects congregating in houses might, therefore, easily be lessened by the choice of suitable colors applied to the walls. A trap lined with something dark would attract so many insects that they could be slain in large numbers. Mosquito-bars or screens should be of yellow; for blue or black attracts them and coaxes them into finding admission.

A policeman in Hagerstown, Md., was recently removed from the force because several small boys charged him with stealing their marbles.
