Mrs. A. J. Hamlin and family, of Chicago, who are spending the summer in Highland Park, are occupying a very pretty place in Sheridan Road. Quite the most important member of the family is "Chow-Chow," who at first glance reminds one of Seton-Thompson's little "Johnny," for she looks like a tiny black bear, and is really the most bewitching little canine. "Chow" belongs to Mr. Fred R. Hamlin, and is a veritable "lady of quality," if pedigree counts for ought, being of pure Chinese extraction and of the celebrated Chow breed.
