While out driving last Monday evening in the double carriage belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Paepcke who are still abroad, Miss Wagner, a sister of Mrs. Paepcke, and her guest Miss Preisig of New-Orleans were thrown from the carriage in a runaway, sustaining several, but slight injuries. The young woman, and the coachman who was also badly injured were taken home in the electric car. A stranger who stopped the runaway team being unable to find out from the coachman who spoke in very broken English to whom the turn out belonged, or where the Paepcke's lived, resolved to give full rein to the horses, whereupon after a circuitous route, the intelligent animals eventually coming out on the Sheridan Road, in the vicinity of the Gads' Hill settlement made straight for home.
