INDEPENDENT CHINESE COOKS

Queer Phase of the Otherwise Very Acquisitive Nature of the Mongolian Servant.

The following examples of the independence of Chinese cooks are given by a San Francisco writer: "I knew one who, being asked by the mistress of the house to make a cup of coffee for a tramp, considered this to be beneath his dignity and preferred to dismiss the fellow with a gratuity out of his own pocket. The same man, being presented by the master of the house with a handful of cigars, did not accept them without politely intimating that he had plenty to give away to his friends. Nor must I fail to record that this individual, who was notorious for the economical methods he followed out in kitchen management, gratefully refused an offer of increased wages on the grounds both that he had no need of the money and that the expenses of his department were, he conceived (in his delightful pigeon-English), already sufficiently heavy."

Effete Slang.

The worst use of slang is not when it is fresh and piquant, but when it becomes stale and passes into the regular vocabulary of the people, to the exclusion of good English, says the Toronto (Ont.) Globe. Such expressions as "I can see his finish," when they are first uttered, are often used with considerable humorous effect. But the language is impoverished and vulgarized by the habitual use of "turn down" for reject, "call down" for a mild rebuke, "roast" for a severe one, etc. After these expressions have been used for a certain time they ought to be taken out of circulation, along with the ragged banknotes.

A Touching Eulogy.

The following brief but touching eulogy was recently pronounced by a sergeant over the tomb of a soldier in the cemetery at La Haye: "Comrades, the deceased, a friend of us all, had a clean sheet. He looked after his boots, which rarely required mending, and he always had some money to draw from his pay. Imitate his example, comrades."
