An annual family reunion and dinner was given at the home of Mrs. C. Sack on Sunday. Plates were laid for thirty. A most delightful time was spent in reminiscences of old times. Several of the sisters and brothers were not able to be present.

Some of our ladies were quite annoyed by seeing their pictures in the American of Saturday a. m. One lady was heard to remark, "now look at that, that is not my picture at all, it is some other woman's with my name to it. If she sees that she will feel just as badly about it as I do."

Mr. W. F. Baker, who lived at his Exmoor cottage, was found dead in bed Tuesday evening. He had played golf all the afternoon and ate a hearty supper. Heart failure was the immediate cause of death. The deceased was at one time president of the Board Trade, Chicago.

The former patrons of Raffin & Son will be glad to know that Mr. Frank Gallagher, so long with Raffin & Son has bought out their part of the ice business, and has gone into the business on his own hook. Frank is an honest, painstaking and reliable man and will serve his patrons satisfactorily.

A prominent west side man said the other day, "There is only one place for that Carnegie library building and that is Hazel Park." Now why do people keep saying these things unless they mean it. So far only four or five persons have been named as opposed to it. Some of them are only half way opposed.

Mr. John Wain, the agent of the Exmoor addition to Highland Park, had visitors from the high school the other day. A delegation requested permission to play football on the subdivision, near Green Street. They were cordially told to go ahead, do no damage to property and work up some good appetites. Mr. Wain evidently has not forgotten he was a boy once himself.

It has been remarked that some children are in the habit of spending their Sunday School pennies on the way to Sunday School or dropping them, when they have forgotten (?) to give them at Sunday School, into a slot machine on St. John's Avenue. It would be as well, and add to the good character of our town if these machines were kept off the streets on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Warren entertained the C. C. G. class at their first meeting of the year on Monday evening and served coffee and cake. The class will meet there regular each week but will change their regular Monday for meeting to accommodate those who wish to attend the coming lectures at the high school. Tuesday will be the evening for the class meeting after next week until further notice.

A grandson of one of our business men and a good Baptist as well, attended the Kindergarten while visiting here a short time since. The children had some cards about the size of ordinary playing cards on which they had pasted some stars. The teacher turned to the little visitor and said, "my dear, I'm sorry I haven't a card for you." He immediately replied without any hesitation, "O never mind, I don't play cards."

The members of St. Mary's church will open another of their popular bazaars Wednesday, Oct. 14. to continue ten days. It is hoped that the friends will patronize this as generously as they have done formerly, as it is to raise money for the rebuilding of their church. Fancy goods of almost every description will be on exhibition. It is a good opportunity to lay in your Christmas presents and avoid the rush consequent at that time.

A course of six lectures on the capitals of Europe and their social significance will begin at the high school assembly hall next Monday evening, Oct 12, at 8 p. m. 1st lecture, "Constantinople", and discussion of the Turkish question. Lectures will be free to the public, but tickets of admission must be secured in advance, either of the principal or at Mr. Cumming's drug store. The lectures will be illustrated by about seventy beautifully colored slides. The speaker is Mr. Jerome H. Raymond, Ph. D., Chicago.
