"BUSTER BROWN"

One of the most promising announcements of the season is "Buster Brown," a play built on Richard F. Outcault's famous pictures in the New York Herald. This will be given at the Schwartz Theatre Waukegan, Thursday evening, September 29, by the well known manager, Melville B. Raymond, who has secured for the title part, the clever little comedian, Master Giovanni. The dog Tige, will be played by Jack Bell, the well known animal impersonator. There is an elaborate production entailing the services of some fifty people, including a chorus, ballet and a bevy of girls warranted to be quadruple-plated beauty, to wear the "smile that won't come off," and to be costumes by Wanamaker in the latest and most gorgeous fashions.
