Mr. Egan probably has more prizes won on the links than any one twice his age and it will doubtless be a long time before his record is approached. Mr. Egan, it is said, will not compete in any more tournaments this season and will begin his business career this fall.

One Hundred and twenty-seven children from the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphans' Home enjoyed an outing on the grounds of D. B. Jones' house at Lake Forest one day this week. The children were the guests of Miss Gwendolyn Jones and she prepared a very happy time for the little ones. A big dinner at 12 and tea at seven were served on the lawn and the children will long remember the open air frolics and the bountiful supply of dainties enjoyed that day.

Providence was not over kind to the pleasure seekers who joined the excursion to Geneva Lake on Thursday, but in spite of the bad weather those who went enjoyed the day. There were three hundred and four passengers on the train, all told and about one quarter of them were Highland Park people. Arriving at Lake Geneva at 11:10 they were welcomed by a pouring rain and had to seek shelter wherever it could be found. A little after noon, however, the rain stopped and boats large and small were rented for the remainder of the time. Some enjoyed a trip around the lake on a double deck excursion steamer and were made familiar with the well known places along the shore. On the whole the day was a pleasant one and as the crowd boarded the train for home at 6:30 all agreed that the excursion was a pleasant one and another should be planned for next year.

Work

Let me but do my work from day to day,
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring market-place, or tranquil room,
Let me but find it in my heart to say,
When vagrant wishes beckon me astray,
This is my work; my blessing, not my doom;
Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work can best be done in the right way,
Then shall I see it not too great, nor small,
To suit my spirit and to prove my powers,
Then shall I cheerfully greet the laboring hours,
And cheerful turn, when the long shadows fall,
At eventide, to play, and love, and rest,
Because I know, for me my life is best.

Moody Institute

But two more weeks and the Moody institute will be closed. Sixty-six little cots will be on their way back to Chicago and about 600 children will be better and happier, perhaps, for the two months the big house opened its doors to them.

Of the "fresh air" summer resorts on the North Shore, the Moody Institute is more or less personally interested or connected with the Gad's Hill Association, but the Moody Sunday School's being situated as it is, some distance from Glencoe, and more than able to take care of its own vast numbers, coupled with its lack of continuous organization for its fresh air encampment, has not tended to bring the camp into the notice of the immediate public.

The Moody fresh air home is an institution supported entirely by the Moody Sunday School, no especial planning or providing of sufficient funds for the summer's outing being made beforehand, their idea being that trust and faith will bring all in due time. The free will offerings of the people have kept up the institution each year.

Mr. and Mrs. Worden, who have charge of the home, with several volunteer "workers" and a cook, are taking care of from fifty-five to sixty different children each week. No child is eligible to this outing who is not a member of the Sunday school and who is not absolutely needy. If a child is sick or ailing he may be kept over the stipulated week, which seems a short enough space of time to the poor little tots. Though sometimes even this glimpse into higher and better things will change the tenor of a child's life.

Every thing for the children's amusement both in and out of doors is furnished, while aside from their moral culture and physical welfare, the ways of a christian household are taught, all the work being done by the little ones from the making of the smooth little gray blanketed beds to the washing of the dishes, where little black Dinah and flaxen haired Gretchen's work side by side, and after all, the influence thus exerted is the primary cause of a "fresh air" society.
