

What People Are Doing in Highwood

Mr. Charles Unbehaun and Miss Maren Olsen of Christiana, Norway, were very quietly married by Judge Daniel Pease last Sunday, and are spending their honeymoon with friends in Winnetka. After January 1st, they will reside on Highwood avenue.

Little ten year old Hughes Moren fell from a tree last Sunday while playing with his friends, and suffered a broken arm.

Fire broke out in the brick house on Prairie avenue, occupied by Mr. Lawrence, last Saturday night, and completely destroyed the interior of the building. Mr. Lawrence's household effects are a complete loss. It was impossible to fight the fire, although the fire department turned out promptly.

Mr. F. E. Hartman died at her home in Chicago last Sunday, after a long and painful illness from cancer. She had been a resident of this city for a long time, and removed to Chicago only recently.

The Shamrock Club will hold an invitation dance in Odd Fellows hall on New Year's night.

There will be a social dance at Fort Sheridan Park on New Year's eve.

A regular meeting of the city council was held on Wednesday evening. Ordinances were passed for the macadamizing of parts of Highwood, Walker and Railway avenues early in the Spring.

Sargeant Griffin of Co. I, 9th U. S. Cavalry, (colored) shot and killed Corporal Taylor of the same troop while they were at the big Christmas dinner at Fort Sheridan. The shooting was the result of a quarrel over a colored woman whom both were courting. Griffin was placed in the guard house and will be tried for murder or manslaughter by the federal courts.

One of the most depraved acts that ever came to light in the criminal records of this city was the robbing of the poor boxes by several soldiers on Christmas eve. The boxes had been placed in the saloons by the volunteers of America, and is known to have been looted over $10. The soldiers, who were led by Frank Donnel and Joseph Saplin broke open the boxes in the saloons of Ed J. Jones, J. B. Martin and Weinacht and W. J. Welch's cafe, and spent the money for drinks. They were informed upon by two negro soldiers who they invited to join them, and were arrested. Donnell and Saplin were charged with larceny, and bound over to the grand jury. Two other soldiers, known to have been implicated, received the maximum penalty for disorderly conduct, and were sent to the county jail to serve out their fines of $200 each.

Begin early to think up a list of things which you should swear off doing on New Year's day. Do not join the cynics who say it is of no use. If you keep the good resolutions only fifteen minutes you will be that much ahead, and who knows but by accident you might keep them two weeks. A man never knows what he can do until he tries, even though he has tried before. Anyhow, it will do no harm to make out a list. You can show them to your wife from time to time and she will believe that you mean to keep them.

Many a door of opportunity is closed to a man on account of his imagined chest measure.

"I bought a dozen fancy vests today, wife."

"A dozen! What for?"

"Economy."

"Well, buying a dozen vests at a time doesn't look like economy."

"Oh, yes, it does. You see, I'm getting so stout that it will take more material to make a vest for me, so I got 'em before I got stouter."—Yonkers Statesman.

Sweating of Pipes

Insulating cold water pipes is frequently done in sections of the country where the water flowing through the pipes is at a comparatively low temperature, the warm air passing over them cooling so quickly as to cause condensation of the moisture in the air. The wet spots under the water pipes are frequently attributed to leaks, but the experienced plumber diagnoses the case as one of sweating. The remedy is to cover the pipes with some kind of non conducting covering like some of the asbestos productions, protecting the pipes from the warm air.

The German girl who presided over the soda fountain in Heckelmeyer's drug store was accustomed to patrons who did not know their own minds, and her habit of thought was difficult to change.

"I'd like a glass of plain soda," said a stout man, entering one day in evident haste as well as thirst.

"You have vanilla, or you have lemon?" tranquilly inquired the young woman.

"I want plain soda—without syrup. Didn't you understand me?" asked the stout man, testily.

"Yes," and the placid German face did not change in expression or color. "But what kind sirup you want him mitout? Mitout vanilla, or mitout lemon?"
