The east side of the city was practically in darkness for an hour or so on Wednesday evening. A fuse burned out and shut off electric light. Some inconvenience was felt at the churches, where prayer meetings are held on Wednesdays, and at some social gatherings.

We understand that the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric roads have made a regulation on the carrying of dogs as passengers. Little four-legged pets, carried in the arms or on the lap, are passed free, but larger dogs will be admitted only on the rear platform and a small fair will be charged.

At the Elm Place School.

The second week of school finds an enrollment of 475 pupils at the Grammar School. This is in excess of the enrollment one year ago, and it seems likely that the total enrollment for the current school year will exceed that of last year not less than the latter did that of the preceding year. For the last three years the gain in attendance has been about enough to fill an additional room each year. The beginning of this year finds every school room occupied. Previous to this year there was but one seventh grade room. This year there are two seventh grade rooms, and this means that in another year or so there will need to be an additional eighth grade room.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education it was decided to put in operation again the bus carrying the smaller children from the Port Clinton school to the Elm Place school, since it has not seemed feasible to re-open the former school this year. Some of the children living in the north end of the district are considerably farther from the Elm Place building than the latter is from the Lincoln avenue building in School District No. 108, and it was contended by school patrons in that part of the district that the bus should be used to transport the small children or the Port Clinton building should be re-opened. Petitions to that effect having been submitted, the Board of Education authorized a committee to enter into a contract for running the bus each way once a day, and the bus will soon be in operation again.

Miss Elizabeth Knapp, of Evanston, has been enrolled on the teaching force as a salaried cadet, with regular afternoon duties in second grade. Her special work will be to assist Mrs. Benedict, who not only has charge of a class room but also supervises the drawing work in the entire building. Miss Knapp has had excellent training in the Evanston schools.
