

ser-
y of
the
mber
n 20
y ap-
try.

FIND
R.

er in
may
young
help
story
many
cident
of our
youth
letters

1907.

terest
you.
years
ue of
arents
ow I
Lake
year
is last
orking
g con-
Since
ord of
New-
or him
ewhere
d son
h my
e about
to see
moth-
keeps
always
ead or
hat he
Dear
y way
would
en he
Pleas-
ut now
St., N.
he will

5 years
ht and
vertised
no one
I am

anagan.

ee in

e of the Railway
ry effort
to Mil-

ossible
ork done
it to the
Y,
one 107.

'Enchantress' Carnations, Fritz Bahr's Prize Winners at the Great Chicago Flower Show at the Coliseum.

HE above is a picture of the vase of Carnations with which Mr. Bahr, of Highland Park, captured the first prize at the great Chicago flower show two weeks ago. It is doubtful whether ever before a higher grade of carnation blooms were exhibited than there was at the last show, and the entries came from almost every state by the largest growers of cut flowers in the country. Our readers will therefore appreciate what it means for Mr. Bahr to bring home the Blue Ribbon. What the trade thinks of it is shown by a clipping from the "Florists' Exchange," the leading trade paper and reads, "The grand vase of Enchantress Carnations exhibited by Fritz Bahr was the feature of the Carnation Day at the show." This makes seventeen first and six second prizes out of twenty-six entries which have been won by Mr. Bahr within the last ten years at the great flower shows held by the Horticultural Society of Chicago. Highland Park cannot fail to be proud of the distinction thus won to the city by Mr. Bahr's study of flower life and growth.