A MIXED METAPHOR.

The subject of his address was Patriotism, and he concluded with a burst of eloquence: Patriotism my tion, and what we have got to do is to bring that backbone to the front." He then sat down, feeling that he had overdone it.

No Two Mouths Alike.

Dr. Paul Prager, an Austrian army surgeon, who has made a special study of methods of identification, recommends that prisoners should be identified by the shape of their palates. Dr. Prager declares that the method would be much more reliable than any at present used, for among the thousands of molds he has taken of the interior of the human mouth he has failed to find two which even slightly resembled each other. Although the teeth alter greatly with time, the markings of the palate remain unchanged throughout life.
