Quaker Hereticks.

The following very remarkable item was clipped recently from an old newspaper by a well known citizen of Highland Park and handed to us. We publish it without comment as a curiosity:

"YE SCAMP, W. PENN."

Mrs. Juliet S. Riley, of Muncie, Ind., has in her possession a letter written by Cotton Mather, one of the first Governors of the colony of Massachusetts, to John Higginson. It is dated Boston, 1682, and was handed down to Mrs. Riley from her ancestors, who were Puritans, residing in New England. The epistle is probably the oldest document of its kind in the country, the Indianapolis News says. Its full text is as follows:

Sep 3rd 1682—To ye aged and beloved John Higginson. There be now at sea a skipper (for our friend Esaias Holderoff of London did advise me by the last packet that it would sail some time in August) called ye Welcome. R. Green was master, which has aboard a hundred or more of ye hereticks and malignants called Quakers, with W. Penn, who is ye scamp at ye head of them.

Ye General Court has accordingly given secret orders to master Malachi Huxtell of ye brig Porpoise to way-lay ye said Welcome as near ye coast of Codd as may be, and make captives of ye Penn, and his ungodly crew, so that ye Lord may be glorified, and not mocked on ye soil of this new country with ye heathen worshippe of these people. Much spoil can be made by selling ye whole lot to Barbadoes, where slaves fetch good prices in rumme, and sugar, we shall not only do ye Lord great service by punishing the Wicked but shall make gayne for his ministers and people.

Yours in the bowels of Christ,
COTTON MATHER.

Novices.

A gentleman once taking a walk through the streets of a small town during a sudden hard shower was amazed to meet two beautifully dressed ladies receiving the brunt of the rain on their unprotected costumes, which were going unnoticed in their frantic efforts to protect an old Dobbin from dampness which they were driving to an antiquated buggy. One fair feminine was driving with the left hand and leaning far out on the seat while she held a blue silk sunshade over the flanks of the unconscious old nag, while the other was walking in the road through puddles, heroically unconscious of damp soles and dragging skirts protecting him with an umbrella on the other side.

The gentleman was mystified. He drew near, bowed and asked: "Ladies, pardon me, but will you tell me why you are holding those umbrellas over your horse and not protecting yourselves?"

Upham Asks for Funds.

Assistant Treasurer Fred W. Upham of the Republican national committee is busy receiving replies to 11,000 letters sent out by him to the members of all the clubs in Chicago asking for contributions of them in the following language:

"Won't you kindly send me a check for the Republican national campaign? You want Taft and Sherman elected and they can't be elected without an organization and an organization can be effected that can do the work less the Republican national committee has the money. It is only through organization that the desired result can be secured. Congress has passed a statute making it unlawful to solicit money for political purposes from corporations. We must, therefore, depend upon individuals."

Swiss and German Scenes.

"The country from Switzerland to the Seine is pretty. Charming little medieval towns cluster about the valley of the Rhone, and the hillsides are clad with vines laden with ripe grapes, and over and around all the delicious air gives one the sense of joyous satisfaction. Some interesting as well as instructive epistles are connected with almost every spot we stop at. Here a battle was fought where a great man was born, and yonder is where Rousseau journeyed and selling music and begging for a night's lodging.

"WOMEN AND GIRLS IN THE FIELDS working in the fields here, as in many. The industry and economy of the French are proverbial. A woman is never idle. In the railway cars, she is working with her needle constantly. I have rarely seen a woman sitting in a chair and doing nothing.

"But on the other hand, this constant toil, while it may enrich a nation materially, has, at least so it seems to me, robbed woman of leisure to attend to her person and her mind. She is not given much to reading, many are so overworked that they have become negligent of their persons as well as of their minds. Women shriveled and emaciated, wretchedly clad, with naked feet, their backs doubled under heavy loads, while not a trace is left in their faces of the youth and beauty that must have been there at one time."—M. M. Mangasarian.

Had to Marry Eve.

Pastor Roseger, of Gratz, said that he visited a school one day when Bible instruction was a part of the daily course, and, in order to test the children's knowledge, asked some questions. One class of little girls looked particularly bright, and he asked the tallest one, "What sin did Adam commit?" "He ate forbidden fruit." "Right. Who tempted Adam?" "Eve." "Not really Eve, but the serpent. How was Adam punished?" The girl hesitated and looked confused. A little eight-year-old raised her hand, and said: "Please, pastor, I know." "We tell us. How was Adam punished?" "He had to marry Eve."

A bishop used to say to his children when they had used some new article of comfort, "There, you have added your troubles by a new want!"

Mrs. Benham—Do you suppose the kings and queens talk like ordinary mortals? Benham—Certainly. I have no doubt that a queen asks her king if her crown is on straight.—Truth.
