Maid of the Heather

By Byron Williams

Ah, beautiful the fragrant night
 And balmy June the weather,
 When she and I, with fond delight,
 Went gayly forth together—
 And she was fairer than the sight
 Of blossoms in the heather!
 Beyond the rude vacation crowd
 We wandered forth together,
 And in the moonlight soft we vowed
 That never more—no never—
 The cold and heartless world, and proud,
 Our love should ever sever!
 She left to seek a foreign shore—
 Her billet doux were clever—
 And then, somehow, she wrote no more
 Of days we spent together.
 Her love is now of cherished lore—
 A chapter of the heather.
 But never come vacation days
 Of balmy June-time weather,
 But I recall where sunset plays
 Upon the blooms and heather
 And long to tread with her the ways
 Now lost to me forever.

Be a Friend to Man.

"Let me live in my little house by the side of the road,
 Where the race of men go by;
 They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
 Wise, foolish—and so am I;
 Then why should I sit in the scorner's seat,
 Or hurl the cynic's ban?
 Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
 And be a friend to man."

All Agree to the Good Rule.

Let none of you treat his brother in a way he himself would dislike to be treated.—Mohammedan.

The true rule of life is to guard and do by the things of others as they do by their own.—Hindu.

The law imprinted on the hearts of all men is to love the members of society as themselves.—Roman.

What you would not wish done to yourself do not unto others.—Chinese.

One should seek for others the happiness one desires for oneself.—Buddhist.

He sought for others the good he desired for himself. Let him pass on.—Egyptian.

All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do you even so to them.—Christian.

The woman with a career has no business with any such absorbing interest in life as a husband.

A more level distribution of wealth can be secured only by thrift, not by theft.

Sir Walter Scott's novels have been more profitable than any other series of books published.

Captain—What would happen if this ship should strike an iceberg?
 "The iceberg would move right along, madam, just as if nothing had happened."
 And the old lady seemed greatly relieved.

Among all the excitements of politics, the vicissitudes of business, and the disturbance of the social order, science goes quietly on its way, discovering new applications of energy, adding constantly to the power of man, and increasing the comfort and happiness of all nations.

Few men and fewer women dress merely to please themselves. They do so either to create a good impression or to avoid creating a bad one.

"The way to rise above disappointment is to fix our eyes not on others' or our own failures, but on the mark, and press forward toward that."

Value and Utility

THE IMPORTANCE and value of a clean, reliable local newspaper devoted to the interests of a constituency like that of the North Shore cities and villages, can hardly be overestimated.

The NORTH SHORE NEWS-LETTER is printed in convenient form for handling and for preservation, so that it can not only be used as a paper for the week, but may become of permanent historic value. The present form and size of page are designed to be permanent.

The NORTH SHORE NEWS-LETTER is not intended to compete with the big dailies, and is in no sense a sensational or a sporting paper.

It is in the fullest sense EDUCATIONAL, RELIGIOUS, Social and Political, while it is absolutely unsectarian, non-partisan and independent.

To Advertisers

The NORTH SHORE NEWS-LETTER is invaluable as a medium of business for North Shore people.
