Is the prejudice against the woman smoker dying out? Do only the aesthetes continue to object if she smokes cigarettes? Will this day ever dawn when husband and wife will share their pipe together, and the first kiss of love will be mellowed by tobacco?

Be anxious the past with grief and failure? Vain it is that you regret it, yesterday we may not alter—Just forget it!

Will not in the morrow's dreamland Castles of the musing brow; the to-day demands attention—Just be doing something now!

When a man works only for himself, he gets neither rest here, nor reward hereafter.

Be yourself to-day, regardless of what happened yesterday. Be all that you are or can be to-day, and you will be in a fairer world to-morrow.

What does anxiety do? It does not help to-morrow of its sorrow; it helps to-day of its strength. It does not make you escape the evil; it makes you unfit to cope with it if it comes.

Life ought to be a delightful journey. Taken as a whole, it is; but we have vast ups and downs; we have so much needless pain and friction and happiness along the journey—and we hate it all ourselves.

Real friendships are rarer to-day than in former times. We have no time to study one another, to test our acquaintances. Our sympathies are superficial; we forget easily.

Ft. Sheridan.

Battery E. and F., Fourth Mountain artillery left on Saturday in Pullman tourist cars, the train being in two sections, over the North Western and Union Pacific via Julesburg, Nebraska, to Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming. The Batteries were in command of Major Mott. An amusing feature of the artillery was the loading on the cars of Uncle Sam's mules. For a few weeks back these docile creatures have been parading our streets in care of their guards for a morning ramble. This morning of departure an oak two by four held by four men, two at each end suddenly lifted the latter half of the mules anatomy while a fifth tugging at the halter landed the docile creature safely within the car. The oak 2x4 obviated the danger of "Maud" elevating her heels. One of the departing soldiers took up himself a wife before he took the train. Miss O'Neil of Highwood is now a soldiers wife.

JACOB BEILHART DEAD

It may not sound well to Conventional ears, but we are glad to learn of the death of Belhart because it means the death of one of the numerous immoral cults which have struggled into being under the leadership of certain "affinity," prevents those who seek to abolish the ordained law of marriage, substituting in its stead the debasing anarchistic doctrines of "free love." Belhart was 42 years of age and had a wife and two children. Mrs. Belhart secured a divorce from him and lives in Kansas.
