ANNOUNCEMENT

As our city attorney, K. R. Smoot, will leave Highland Park Wednesday, March 3, 1909, to reside permanently in California, we propose at the next meeting of the City Council, to be held March 2, 1909, to express our friendship and best wishes towards him publicly for his efficient services rendered to our city during the twenty-two years he has acted as our legal adviser, and to that end we hope to see Mr. Smoot's many friends in attendance that night in order to demonstrate the friendly feeling which the public in general entertain towards that gentleman. This announcement will be considered as an invitation to the public to attend. Highland Park, Ill., March 26th, 1909. ALEXANDER ROBERTSON, Mayor.

HIGHLAND PARK POLITICS

There is likely to be lively times over the Spring elections in Highland Park.

Mr. Smoot's retirement opens the door to a very important office, and we are glad to notice that Mayor Robertson has taken the initiative in a suitable testimonial to the gentleman's many years service to the city.

Doubtless there will be competition for this office, and as we have said Mr. George Mason is a logical candidate and a competent and experienced attorney along the very lines needed for a city adviser.

The mayoralty is also an open door, as Mayor Robertson will not seek reelection. There is no lack of suitable men for this highly important office. We have no hesitation in naming one who we think may be persuaded to accept the nomination. There is no better man for it that we can think of, than F. D. Everett, and he would certainly carry the support of the order loving citizens.

Mr. Robertson does not intend to go out of public life. He will run for the office of Supervisor, and his experience and service eminently fit him for that office.

The woods are full of echoes of other notes from men who intend to seek places in the Council, and of these we shall have more to say.

THE AMERICAN STAGE AND THE PRESS

"During the last several seasons the pernicious weed of immorality has been planted in the American stage and has grown to such proportions that it is high time American playwrights, American managers, and American playgoers were asked to stop a minute."

"The children of today are going to be the play-going adults of tomorrow." "To make the stage clean tomorrow we must keep it clean today."

The above quotations are from an article by Frederick Thompson, manager of Luna Park, Coney Island, published in Success Magazine for March. The article points to the very grave aspects of the decline of the American stage during the past year or two and it serves to call leaders of public opinion to the immediate urgency of the subject.

The relation of the local newspaper is especially concerned in this matter because of its influence in determining the choice of amusements.

We confess we have fallen into the common practice among local newspaper publishers of announcing plays, often without any knowledge of their character or their presentation, and we think the honest and safe course is to abstain from such notices except where opportunity is afforded to know something about them.

This does not mean that advance notices can never be given. There are many stage presentations that are known to us and we would have no hesitation in favorably announcing such plays as "The Old Homestead" and "The Melting Pot," but we think managers should provide for an early view of any unknown show before asking us to commend it.

Our Outlook

$5,000 A DAY.

This is the sum which Mrs. Hetty Green says her daughter will control, and hence she was anxious about the man whom said daughter was to marry. So this week she was married to a man 65 years old and himself possessor of a fortune of two millions.

LOCAL OPTION AND BUSINESS.

The Fulton Democrat of Lewistown, Ill., states that last spring there was a fear that if the saloons were driven out, there would be many vacant store rooms. The fact is that since the town has local option, all the vacant store rooms have been occupied by legitimate lines of trade.

NEW "UNITED STATES."

Mrs. Blanche Boehm of St. Louis christened a new steamer which was launched on the 22nd inst, at Manitowoc, for the Indiana Transportation Company. As the fine new steamer floated out from the dry dock into water, Mrs. Boehm broke a bottle of champagne over her brow and named her the "United States."

That is a great name to assume and we hope the vessel will be worthy of it. By the way, though, what is the significance of "champagne" as a christening fluid? Would not a bottle of water from some rare springs be better?

FIVE CENT THEATRES.

Too much emphasis has been laid upon the evils of the five-cent theatre. That there are dangers which need to be guarded against and tendencies that need restriction is to be expected of a form of amusement that has sprung up like a banyan tree.

These places have become so numerous and so popular that all sorts of evils would be introduced if not carefully watched and the physical dangers of overcrowding and fire are among them. But on the score of morality they are much preferable to the general stage of these days. And what are called higher class theatres are often the most deplorably immoral and are only higher class in the price charged for admission and the richness of furnishings and stage effects.

JUDGE CLELAND.

It is to be regretted that any conflict should occur over such beneficent action as Judge Cleland's probationary treatment of young prisoners.

It is surely a step in the right direction to give opportunity to those who fall into the way of crime, but are not criminals in intent, that they may redeem themselves, and in so doing Judge Cleland was but following in the wake of other nations. In France this method has been attended with wonderful results.

It may be that there are good reasons for Judge Olson's action which are not clear to the unjudicial mind, but it does seem that if the energy and influence which are turned against Judge Cleland were directed to amending the law so that there could be no question of the constitutionality of the exercise of mercy where it may prove a blessing, much more would be gained both to justice and public good.

"Not the King's Crown, nor the deputed sword. The Marshal's truncheon, nor the Judge's robe. Become, them with one half so good a grace As mercy does."

TENNESSEE DRY.

After July 1st, next, the sale of intoxicating liquor will be unlawful anywhere in Tennessee, and after Jan. 1, 1910, manufacture of liquor will be outlawed. Two separate bills to this effect were passed over the Governor's veto.

ILLINOIS. Contrary to the statement of the liquor people that local option would destroy business and especially harm the hotels is disproved in many towns of the State. Business has prospered, and in Decatur one of the big hotels which practically failed in the saloon business is now doing a prosperous business with local option.

Champaign's only hotel has prospered so much since the arrival of local option that they have been obliged to add another story.

The fact is that saloons are never necessary to any place, but on the contrary, they are a positive draw back to any community.

A bill is now before the legislature which provides that no license to keep a dram shop shall be issued for any place within two hundred and fifty feet from the nearest entrance to the dram-shop, of (a) A church edifice, used exclusively for church purposes, or the grounds or enclosure thereof. (b) A school-house, or the grounds or enclosure thereof. (c) A hospital building, a training school for nurses, an orphan asylum, or a home for old people, or the grounds or enclosure thereof.

PACKAGE WHISKEY SELLING.

The National House has just passed the Humphreys amendment to the parcel code, providing a heavy penalty for transporting liquor in interstate commerce, except to bonafide consigners, the package to be plainly labeled with the name of the consignee and the exact character of the contents being shown. C. O. D. shipments are forbidden. It was passed by a vote of 129 to 40, and is a great blow to illicit sale of liquor.

The Supreme Court of Iowa recently handed down a decision to the effect that liquor houses outside of the State cannot solicit business in that State. They already have a law prohibiting the shipment of liquor from one point within the State to another within the State except to dealers.

LIQUOR NEWS BUREAU

The liquor people have a news Bureau for the purpose of supplying newspapers with the alleged news purporting to certain facts in regard to the failure of the prohibition movement, the hard times in local option towns etc. The matter thus furnished is for the most part unreliable, and in many cases actually the opposite of the truth. A recent statement of this kind states that Effingham, one of the recent local option towns, is in hard lines financially on account of no license. While Effingham is not in good financial condition the fact is this condition is a legacy from the old days of license. Notwithstanding a saloon revenue of five or six thousand dollars per year a heavy debt was accumulated which is being disposed of as rapidly as possible. Since the town became dry, everything is reported to be improving. Business is better, real estate has increased in value, collections are better and last but not least, men who formerly spent their substances for liquor are now caring properly for their families.

This is the case everywhere, and reports from many towns and cities where local option is in force, prove this statement.

There is a feeling with some people that if local option does not entirely prohibit, the case is lost, and it would be better to return to the former plan of license. The liquor people endeavor to foster this idea, which is entirely wrong. It is true there are some who will have liquor regardless of the law and who will get it by hook or by crook, it is also true there are many people who are willing to accommodate such people by the illegal sale of liquor, in what is known as "blind tigers" etc. These constitute but a small portion of those interested, however.

There are large numbers of men who are glad when open temperance is removed, and they do not seek to evade the law. This has been demonstrated in many communities, and a great many such drinking men voted for the local option law. Another result is the removal of temptation from the growing youth.

In the fulness of time the law breaking liquor sellers and law breaking drinking men will go to their reward and a new generation spring up which will not care to continue in their ways.

"HONESTY THE BEST POLICY"

At the State Democratic Convention held at Charlotte, North Carolina, which was in session for a week, a little boy, eight years old, Cicero Alexander by name, sold one of the delegates a paper. The gentleman gave him a dollar, and the boy, not having the necessary change, went away to get it. When he returned the gentleman had gone into the hall and could not be found. The boy, after hunting vainly for some time, burst into tears. Some one suggested that he go upon the rostrum in convention hall and tell the chairman, which the boy at once did.

Chairman Parsons took him by the hand, led him to the front of the stage, and requested that balloting be suspended for a few minutes. He then explained that the boy desired to return to some one ninety-five cents in change that was due him. The gentleman arose in the rear of the hall, but before he could say anything two thousand delegates, many of whom had been accustomed to call out "no change" on the ballots when their respective counties were called, took up the cry in unison and yelled for ten minutes, "no change!" At the conclusion of the yell, they crowded toward the rostrum. One delegate took the little fellow's big straw hat and put into it a half-dollar. This was followed by nickels, dimes, and quarters until $19.35 was in his hat, and the boy stood bewildered.

A delegate yelled, "Mr. Chairman, I nominate that boy for State treasurer." He was informed by the chair that, as a candidate for treasurer had already been nominated, his motion was not in order. Another delegate then said, "I move that that boy be nominated by acclamation for chief page in the next General Assembly of North Carolina," and the motion was carried unanimously. Thereupon the chairman told the boy that he must make a speech. Walking to the front of the rostrum, he bowed low and said, "Gentlemen, I thank you," the only speech during the convention that was noted for brevity.

Success Magazine.

Keep a Goin'. If you strike a thorn or rose, Keep a Goin'. If it hails or if it snows, Keep a Goin'. 'Taint no use to sit and whine When the fish ain't on your line, Bait your hook and keep on tryin',— Keep a Goin'!

If the weather kills your crops, Keep a Goin'. When you tumble from the top, Keep a Goin'. S'pose you're out of every dime, Gettin' broke ain't any crime, Tell the world you're feelin' prime,— Keep a Goin'!

When it looks like all is up, Keep a Goin'. Drain the sweetness from the cup, Keep a Goin'. See the wild birds on the wing, Hear the bells that sweetly ring, When you feel like singin'—sing,— Keep a Goin'!

Spilled the Story.

"When I came to this town, twenty years ago," said the man with the more than ample waistcoat, "all my earthly possessions were wrapped up in a red bandana handkerchief." "And now you own that factory on the edge of the town and 200 acres of land?" "Yes." "May I ask what you carried in the red bandana handkerchief?" "Six thousand pounds in cash and securities," he responded, reluctantly, for it wholly spoiled the story.

Precoctious Jacky.

Mrs. Marmaduke Brown was entertaining some ladies at a select five o'clock tea, and her little son Jacky, who had been exceptionally well-behaved, was in high feather. "Ma," he said, as cake was being handed round, "may I have some tongue, please?" "There isn't any tongue, Jacky." "That's funny," said Jacky. "I heard pa say there would be lots of it."

Anticipating.

She was proudly showing him a very cheap, very light car that her husband had just bought. "Awfully light, isn't it?" said he. "Yes," said she. "Isn't it splendid! Whenever it breaks down we can always push it home."
