It's "The Candy Shop" that's the panacea for whatever ails you this Summer The new Charles Dillingham musical gaiety at the Studebaker is attracting turnaway audiences at every performance. Not to witness it is to lose an opportunity to see one of the most amusing entertainments seen locally in many seasons. Mounted in the usual good taste peculiar to all productions of the same management, it is cast with a prodigality that would make the presentation notable in the height of a regular season. The production is serving to popularize in Chicago William Rock as a comedian and Maude Fulton as a comedienne, to say nothing of the new laurels the engagement is winning for Comedian Frank Lalor.
