Watch Health of Children.
 In Japan government physicians make a thorough physical examination of all school children once a year, and there is a monthly inspection of them by the medical corps every month. There is also a monthly sanitary investigation of all school buildings, their contents, water supply, surroundings, etc.

Spectacles.
 The invention of spectacles is variously attributed to Alessandro di Spina, who died at Pisa in 1313; to Al Hazen, the Arabian (eleventh century), and to Roger Bacon (1214-92). It is quite safe to suppose that the invention was not earlier than the beginning of the eleventh century.

Dying by Halves.
 By falling from a cart, a Chinaman, whose life was insured for a large amount, was seriously hurt. There was some doubt as to his ever getting better, and at length one of his friends wrote to the insurance company: "Hong Wang Lee half dead; likee half money."—Tit-Bits.

A True Republic.
 The only country we can think of where republican traditions are properly followed out is the little state of Andorra, and there they have no politicians; everybody works.—London Saturday Review.

Attaining Friends.
 The world will value you for what you give. If you invite friends by your manner, and are kind and cordial, you will have them. If you wait for the world to invite you, you will be disappointed.

King Edward Tells Lansdowne Crisis Is Near.

PUBLIC OPINION FEVERISH

Wants Two Parties to Settle Budget Without General Election—Socialistic Upheaval—Result of Ferrer Execution Feared.

London, Oct. 21.—Working with might and main to prevent a general election on the budget, King Edward has become alarmed at the socialistic ferment caused by the Ferrer execution in Spain. He fears that the present state of public opinion should not find expression at the polls. He is reported to have informed Lord Lansdowne that a general election at the present time would put the house of lords in jeopardy and might lead to its total abolition.

The king is contending for a compromise on the budget as a means of preventing an appeal to the electorate. King Warns Lansdowne.

The king is reported as having said to Lord Lansdowne:

"Public opinion is highly feverish. If you imagine that this country will support you on the issue as to whether or not the house of commons shall be supreme in matters of finance you are entirely wrong. A general election means a constitutional crisis of the gravest description and the fate of the house of lords would be in the balance, with the chances largely in favor of its abolition. Are you ready to face the crisis? The decision lies with you, but I must tell you what I think. All I can do and must do is to show you whether in my judgment the path leads which you seem disposed to follow."

Fears Fall of Throne.

The king is battling for mutual concessions, and something of this sort is probable. It is already plain that large holdings of land must be given up.

King Edward has expressed fear of a socialistic upheaval involving every country in Europe if a general election is held in England. He is reported as saying he is afraid that not only the house of lords, but every hereditary institution in the country, will totter.

"Times of extreme anxiety prevail in Europe, and Englishmen should be awakened to the peril," declared the duke of Norfolk in a public speech, referring to the violent unrest in European society, including that of England.

Y. M. C. A. Meets in Urbana.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 21.—The seventy-seventh annual convention of the Illinois State Young Men's Christian association was called to order to-day in the handsome new building of the University of Illinois association on the campus. Most of the prominent workers in the state association are here, and the program for the four days' meeting is full of interest. The report of the officers told of rapid extension of the association in the state during the past year, and noted the opening of fine new buildings in several towns.

Our Chance.
 We read of and admire the heroes of old, but every one of us has to fight his own Marathon and Thermopylae; every one meets the Sphinx sitting by the road he has to pass; to each of us, as to Hercules, is offered the choice of vice or virtue; we may, like Paris, give the apple of life to Venus, or Juno, or Minerva.—Sir John Lubbock
