My Neighbor

My neighbor met me on the street,
She dropped a word of greeting gay;
Her look so bright, her tone so sweet,
I stepped to music all that day.
The cares that tugged at heart and brain,
The work too heavy for my hand,
The ceaseless underbeat of pain,
The tasks I could not understand,
Grew lighter as I walked along
With air and step of liberty,
Freed by the sudden lilt of song
That filled the world with cheer for me.
Yet was this all: A woman wise,
Her life enriched by many a year,
Had faced me with her grave, true eyes,
Passed on, and said, "Good morning dear!"
—Margaret E. Sangster

Hymn Timed Eggs

A well-known Bishop relates that while on a recent visit to the South he was in a small country town, where, owing to the scarcity of good servants, most of the ladies preferred to do their own work.

He was awakened quite early by the tones of a soprano voice singing "Nearer My God to Thee." As the Bishop lay in bed he meditated upon the piety which his hostess must possess which enabled her to get about her task early in the morning singing such a noble hymn.
At breakfast he spoke to her about it and told her how pleased he was.
"Oh law!" she replied. "that's the hymn I boil the eggs by; three verses for soft and five for hard."—Pittsburg Post.

The Habit of Charm And Fascination

The more you put into yourself, the more you will bring to yourself, this is the law! Fill your mind with intelligence, your soul with love, your body with health, and you attract love, friendship, success. Some people are spiritually magnetic, others, intellectually, others physically so. What kind do you prefer? The price must be paid for all, strong will power, immense self-confidence. In a way, confidence in self, is faith in God, which is glorious. The timid man, self depreciating woman, remains a perfect dishrag, never becomes fascinating. Instead of a Divine discontent, cultivate a Divine impudence, which demands and gets the best! Assert your rights but never encroach on the rights of others; this plan would bring about a race of happy, loving, forceful people.

Now you can charm, as the snake charms, for selfish ends, by looking at your victim and willing him to buy or sell. This is not the best, highest form of fascination, it reacts upon the charmer, later, for ill. Because you do not know what is best for the other man, and you assume too much control. You rob him of his birthright, freedom to think and do as God directs, and always the thief is himself robbed of something, by the law of compensation. Take a thing from another, even his self-respect, and he will see you deprived. Give a thing to another, money, food, kindness, courage, and you get it back, in some way.—Ade-jaide Keen in November Nautilus.

The "Smiths"

John Smith—plain John Smith—is not very high-sounding; it does not suggest aristocracy; it is not the name of any hero in die-away novels; and yet it is good, strong and honest. Transferred to other languages, it seems to climb the ladder of respectability. Thus in Latin it is Johannes Smith; in the Italian it smoothes it off into Giovanni Smith; the Spaniards render it Juan Smithus; the Dutchman adopts it as Hans Schmidt; the French flatten it out into Jean Smeed, and the Russian sneezes and barks Jonloff Smitowski. When John Smith gets into the tea trade in Canton he becomes Jovan Shimmit; if he clambors about Mount Hecla, the Icelanders say he is Janne Smithson; if he trades among the Tuscaroras he becomes Ton Qa Smittia; in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmitt-wieiski; should he wander among the Welsh mountains they talk of Jihon Schmidd; when he goes into Mexico he is booked as Jontli F'Smitti; if of a classic turn he lingers among Greek ruins, he turns to Ion Smitkon, and in Turkey he is utterly disguised as Yoe Seef.—Phrenological Journal.

Missions and Liquor

On an average, says "The Missionary Review," every German contributes four cents to foreign missions, and one and one-fourth cents to home missions, while he spends twelve dollars for wine, whiskey and beer. The whole Christian world of one hundred and fifty million souls contribute seventeen million dollars for missions. The State of New York, with a population of nearly eight million, pays nearly seventeen million every year in licenses for the privilege of selling liquor—not for the liquor itself. Is Christendom much in earnest in praying "Thy kingdom come"?—Exchange.
