Woman's Club Meeting.

The meeting at the Highland Park Woman's Club took place on Tuesday afternoon. It was the annual federation day, and an unusually interesting one. Miss Elizabeth McCrystle played the "Magic Fire" music from die Walkure, by Wagner, and the "Revere" by Schutt. Miss McCrystle is a promising young musician and the musical world prophesies a brilliant future for her. Miss Burgess sang "Night of Nights" a Christmas song which was beautifully rendered. Several reports were given by those who attended the annual meeting at Oak Park. Mrs. Daniel Cobb read a very interesting paper about the relation of individual woman and club to the State Federation, its value to all concerned and the great growth of the clubs. Mrs. Lawrence Olson spoke about the Club houses in the State and County. Mrs. Parker read the annual report of the work that had been done in the different branches of club work. Mrs. Roberts read a clever paper she had written on "The Snobbishness in Education." Mrs. Campbell also spoke of the Club houses and the poor pay the attendants and physicians received, and the way to be able to supply better attendants was through the State or County tax payers in allowing more money to be used on these institutions. Mrs. Everett, President of the Illinois Federation told of the great advance in the State Institutions for the Insane and of the one at Peoria where Dr. Zeller has worked out some of his theories, one in particular of not having bars at the windows, of the wonderful success he has had. There is one other institution of this kind in New Jersey. She also touched upon many of the subjects taken up at the Oak Park Federation. It was a great disappointment to those present that Mrs. Everett did not have more time to talk in which to tell of the great work accomplished by the clubs.

The club adjourned and had coffee with the hostesses, Mrs. George M. Seward, Mrs. Fred Schaefer, Mrs. R. L. Sandwick and Mrs. Bastin.

The next meeting of the club will be the children's party on the twenty-eighth.

During the snowstorm on Monday night, thousands of birds (believed to be Lapland Longspurs) were heard passing over, their voices coming from the sky from every direction, as we hear them during the spring migration. This continued from dark until after ten o'clock. A few years ago countless thousands of these birds perished at night during a heavy wet snow storm, followed by a freezing wind. Their wings became soaked with snow, and falling to the ground they were frozen by the cold which followed. Such records are of course very unusual. Lapland Longspurs are found most every winter in small flocks on the prairies or farms. They breed in the Arctic regions in Hudson Bay country.

One of the best performance ever given at Ravinia Park, was the comedy "Sowing Wild Oats," given by the students of New Trier High School. Miss Mary Yean and William M. Lowrie directed and staged the performance. They had unusually good material to work with and the play went off without one hitch. Between the first and second acts some twenty girls gave a fancy step drill. The music was furnished by the New Trier Orchestra and everyone was very glad they had braved the weather and had gone.
