Business Enterprise

In another column of this issue we announce to Highland Park and North Shore citizens the transfer of the business and good will of the N. L. Higgins hardware store to a new firm to be known as Robertson and Ives. The new firm asks for fair patronage of old and new customers and they believe that the policy of a square deal and moderate prices will hold the trade and make a flourishing business.

The ability of both men justifies their optimism. Mr. Alexander Robertson is known all along the North Shore as a reliable business man and not only conducted a successful lumber business, but has held several public offices of trust, being the mayor of Highland Park for a term of two years. Mr. Robert Ives is popular and well known, being until recently superintendent of the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric Railroad. We welcome this new enterprise and we have enough confidence in the citizens of Highland Park and vicinity to prove to these men that their business enterprise will not be in vain.

Man's Debt to the Horse

No animal on the face of the earth works like the horse; no animal anywhere is his equal in usefulness to man. He is the one real slave of humanity; for never lived a human slave in any age or in any land who went about his task and his crushing labors more uncomplainingly, more steadily and more faithfully than does the horse. He brings help when the home is aflame; he drags in the harvest that feeds millions he scurries over the ground to bring the physician to the bedside when we come into the world; he paces solemnly onward as he drags us to the grave. He carries the joyful children upon his broad back, and he thunders to the hospital with the elating ambulance. Through the streets he drags the mighty iron supports for the giant skyscraper, and over the boulevards of the park he sweeps with fashion and beauty at his hoofs. In the midst of plenty he carries food in abundance to countless homes, and in the midst of starvation he yields up his own body to keep life in the famished human frame.

And for this sublime devotion, this life-long labor, this noble martyrdom, how often is the faithful animal repaid with atrocious cruelty and vile and inhuman neglect! The treatment of horses by some people is immeasurably base; and it is all the more hideous and scoundrelly because the poor animal has no means of defense, no chance for aid, no voice to demand help.

He is driven at terrific speed for immense distances; he is forced to wear rough and heavy harness over a sore and lacerated body, dragging after him heavily laden wagons, all the while suffering silently the most awful torture. He is compelled to drag overloaded wagons up steep hills, often cruelly lashed with the whip, and then after a long day of dreadful slavery he is poorly housed, often with insufficient food.

Yet there are owners and drivers of a different stamp. These are men into whose hardened soul no appreciation of the value and devotion of the horse is allowed to penetrate. They misuse the animal to an atrocious degree, and are impervious to his appealing look, when he is racked by pain or worn down with toil, as though the poor beast were but a senseless rock. Such men as these know no pity they know no horse.

There is nothing overdrawn in this recital of man's inhumanity to his one best and most constant friend. Happily, though, it is not a recital of the usual treatment of the horse. Turning from the consideration of ill-treatment, it is pleasant to know that in the hearts of the vast majority of men, women, and children there is genuine love for this friend in the animal kingdom. And assuredly he deserves that love.

When you love a horse, you have man's best, truest, and most useful friend in all the range of the world of animals.—Pittsburg Press.

The Theatres

That Liebler and Company showed splendid judgment in bringing "Little Brother of the Rich," the dramatization of Joseph Medill Patterson's daring society novel, back to Chicago, was emphatically demonstrated at the Studebaker last week, where it began its second Chicago engagement this winter.

The enormous success of "The Fourth Estate," the big newspaper play by Mr. Patterson and his collaborator in both, Miss Harriet Ford, has made his name in Chicago the most powerful of any dramatic author to-day, and the daring satire, the sensational brilliancy of the wit and the pitiless flaying of society which "A Little Brother of the Rich" reveals, make it the sole topic of conversation in the smart set.

Although the regular house scale of prices at the Studebaker, $1.50 for the best seats in the evenings and one dollar at the Wednesday matinee, are in force, the cast and production are identically the same as seen at the Grand Opera House in this city, the players including Ida Conquest, Vincent Serrano, Hilda Spong, John Flood, Dick Lee, Henry C. Mortimer, Georgie, Busby, Dakota Reiche and a dozen others.

"The best comedy I've seen in Chicago," wrote Ashton Stevens, the brilliant, sardonic critic of the Examiner, and while the play fully merits this appellation, there is a big moral lesson and a warning to the American people which strikes as deep as the very fundamental principle on which is based American life in the big cities today underneath the satire and comedy.

Rev. C. K. Orsborn, pastor.
Have you ever enjoyed the privilege of attending a live Bible class? A class that is organized, having its own officers and business meeting. If not, why not? You don't know what you're missing. Such a class is class No. 7, teacher, Mr. H. E. Moore. One of Mr. Moore's good points is the ability to keep people interested. Come and see.

Make it a point to attend the Sunday morning service, February 6. The pastor will preach a sermon answering the question, "Can a man combine business and religion?" This promises to be full of good, practical lessons for us all. Come. You are cordially invited to attend this, as well as all the services.

Sunday evening is the monthly consecration meeting of the Keystone League. Leader, Miss Effie Vant.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The undersigned beg leave to announce that they have bought out the hardware stock and good will of the business at No. 12 W. Central Ave., formerly conducted in the name of N. L. Higgins, and by courteous treatment, strict attention to business, reasonable prices, and an up-to-date stock, we hope to merit a share of public patronage which will be fully appreciated.

Yours very respectfully,

Old Residents of Lake County Take Notice

We would be glad to receive and publish in Kelley's History of Lake County—now on the press and soon to be published—any corroborated reminiscences of early times of yourself, friends or relatives who have lived in Lake County prior to 1875. Also data from which we can make a literary sketch regarding their lives, date of birth, arrival in Lake County, marriages, deaths, etc., etc.

We are endeavoring to make this a work of historical value, and while we desire to make mention of the people of the present day, it is our intention to perpetuate the memory of those early settlers who laid the foundation of and helped build our county.

This offer does not call for the expenditure of any money upon your part, and remains open up to and including Feb. 15, 1910, and if, when this work is published, no mention is made of yourself, parents or friends through modesty on your part, it is not our fault.

We need your assistance to make this a full and authentic History of Lake County.
