Even a strait-laced man has been known to go crooked.
A woman's inconsistency is the greatest of her many charms.
Many a man who thinks he is conservative is in-reality dead slow.
A man is usually charitably inclined until he gets out of money.

Why he Cried
The sympathetic neighbor asked, "Is your little brother ill this morning, Johnnie? I heard him crying in the most heartrending manner."
"No, not exactly," Johnnie, "but Willie pulled down a jug of molasses on himself in the pantry, and mother has been trying to comb his hair."
"You were a little shy on facts in that speech of yours."
"I know I was," admitted the new Congressman. "That's why I put in plenty of gestures."
Fitting Garb.
"How does Jack look in his hunting costume?"
"Simply killing."

More to the Point
Doctor (politely, but looking a watch with impatience)—Pardon me, madam, but my time is not my own. You have given me all your symptoms in sufficient detail, and now, per se, you will kindly—er—ah—
Husband (not so considerate)—Aria, he doesn't want to hear your tongue any more; he wants to look at it.
"You didn't seem able to understand what I was saying over the telephone this morning at your office."
"No wonder. While you were calling me up my boss was calling me down."
"He tells me he caught a forty-penny bass."
"Give you any reason to believe in it?"
"Gave me a fairly good cigar."

"Something realistic?" asked the playwright.
"Yes; but I don't want any real pugilists, or real naval disasters, or real live stock, or real battles in it."
The playwright looked wearily thoughtful, and, after a pause, inquired: "How would it do to spring something on the public with real actors in it?"

"Can you give any references from your last place?"
"No, ma'am. The last woman I worked for was Mrs. Lippy, that used to live next door to you. She an' I couldn't get along at all. You don't know how mean she is. I could tell you ever so many—"
