ILLINOIS NEWS TERSELY TOLD

Chicago.—Through the detective work of Miss Jennie Trautman, cashier of the Lakota hotel, 3001 Michigan avenue, Frank B. Carson, a carpenter employed by the hotel, was arraigned before Judge Wells in the Harrison street municipal court on a charge of taking $1,800. Detectives said that Carson confessed, after eight hours' questioning, and showed them where the money had been concealed in the false bottom of a tool chest, which he had used while making some repairs in the hotel vault. The missing money was that which Miss Trautman had made up into the weekly payroll and placed in the vault in a valise. The money was soon missed, but no trace of it could be found. Carson was at work in the vault, but asserted that he knew nothing of the money. He showed that he did not have the money concealed in his clothes, and opened his tool chest for the mystery of the vanished money grew. Miss Trautman was certain that no one but herself and Carson had been in the vault, and she began some quiet detective work that resulted in Lieutenant Reed and Detectives Ames and Sansman of the central detail being summoned. Carson was arrested and questioned. Finally, the detectives say, Carson confessed to the theft and to having placed the money in the tool chest which had been specially prepared. He took the detectives to the basement, where he kept his tools, and there in the chest was all of the money.

Streator.—S. E. Inall, president of the Commonwealth Edison company of Chicago, with a party of ten business associates or engineers, came here from Chicago on a special train to look over the local gas, electric and street railway properties which, with similar plants elsewhere in the Illinois valley, have just been purchased to carry out a $3,000,000 project by which they expect to supply a circuit of a score of Illinois towns with gas and electricity. Central power stations will be located at Joliet, Streator and Wilmington. The corporation behind the project will be known as the Illinois Valley Gas and Electric company.

Spring Valley.—Deputy sheriffs served notices of the writ of injunction granted the Spring Valley Coal company against the heads of all the local unions of the mine workers' union in Spring Valley, Ladd, Dalzell, Seatonville and Marquette. All are warned to keep off the company's property and desist from all acts of intimidation or violence. At these mines there has been no trouble. This move on the part of the company has produced bitter feeling on the part of the miners. Clerks and mine bosses are employed at the engines since the engineers were ordered out.

Chicago.—While the disabled engine of their 20-foot gasoline launch Venus gave them no aid, E. Lundquist, 3343 Osgood street, and C. A. Rasmussen, 3710 Armitage avenue, battled with a high sea on Lake Michigan for three hours. They finally were rescued by two Lincoln park policemen, who heard their cries for help as the waves carried the disabled launch about twenty-five feet from shore at the jackknife bridge in Lincoln park.

Assumption.—After the decision of County Judge Prater in the election contest making this township "wet," the city council met to draft a saloon ordinance. The city board consists of three "drys" and three "wets" with a "dry" mayor, but the vote was unanimous for saloon license at $800 per year. The board will meet again for the consideration of applicants for saloon license.

East St. Louis.—Rain dampened everything on the East side except the sprits of the Egyptian Hustlers here in convention. It is expected 25,000 visitors will come to East St. Louis during the week.

Chicago.—Three families fled from their homes when fire attacked a three-story brick building at 1458 West Chicago avenue. The building and contents were considerably damaged. The cause of the blaze was not learned. The fire started in the flat of John Smekolweck, who aroused the other tenants and then sent in an alarm. A brick building at 124 East Thirty-third street, used as a confectionery by P. W. Jones, was also damaged by fire.

Shot During Riot.

Omaha, Neb., June 15.—Nicholas Jimika, Greek, was fatally shot and 16 of his countrymen were arrested as the result of a riot which followed the alleged robbery in South Omaha of a Greek boarding car.
