Reouf Bey, acting consul general of Turkey in New York, announced that the ministry of public works in Constantinople has invited bids for the reconstruction of an extensive system of trolley lines in Constantinople.

Three bandits, armed with automatic magazine revolvers, shot and instantly killed Thomas A. Landregan, a shoe manufacturer, and Police Officer James H. Carroll and ran away with a bag containing $5,000, which the manufacturer and policemen were taking from a bank to the shoe factory of Welch & Landregan for the weekly pay roll. The robbers were captured.

Three Cornell crews swept down the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to three straight victories in the sixteenth annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing association. Pennsylvania forced the varsity eight to a heart-breaking two-shell struggle.

Cincinnati, Oct. 9.—An appeal for smaller and cheaper millinery was made by Vice Mayor Galvin in welcoming the Millinery Traveling Men's association at its convention.

Representatives of fifty-eight cotton mills assembled at Gastonia, N. C., and signed an agreement to shut down completely for four weeks in July and August.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers began its annual convention at Jefferson, N. H., in the White Mountains. Lewis B. Stillwell is its president.

The Sangamon county (Ill.) grand jury's probe into the legislative bribery scandal resulted in the following indictments: Representative Lee O'Neil Browne, Representative Robert E. Wilson, Frank J. Traut, Louis D. Hirsheimer and J. B. Johnston on charges of conspiracy to bribe.

The first regular session of the Sixty-first congress was brought to a finish with the Taft progressive program carried out practically in its entirety. The president signed the rivers and harbors bill, but sent a message to congress saying that it must change its method of framing river and harbor measures.

Through the burning of the excursion steamer J. S., belonging to the Acme Packet company, between Victoria and Genoa, 24 miles south of La Crosse, Wis., on the Mississippi river, four persons are dead, five seriously injured and about fifty are suffering from minor cuts, bruises and burns.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Republican claim—Actual probable fixed charge against the revenues during the fiscal year of 1911, $893,120,761. Democratic claim—Congress at the session just closed again passed the billion dollar high water mark.

Both Parties Agree—Appropriations for expenses of the government made during the past session aggregate $1,027,133,446. These contentions epitomize the annual review of national appropriations and expenditures, made public by Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee of the house and ranking Democratic member of that Representative Livingston of Georgia committee.

Mr. Tawney's fixed-charge statement is based on deducting from the aggregate the authorizations which carry no appropriations.

MR. TAWNEY asserted that the majority of the constructive legislation of the first regular session of the Sixty-first congress constitutes a record of accomplishments surpassing in importance any previous session in the history of congress. Mr. Livingston denounced what he called a large increase on account of public expenditures, an increase of the public debt—"half a billion dollars spent for militarism and the treasury drained for army and navy."

Cambridge, Mass., June 29.—Attorney General Wickersham, in an address before the Harvard Law School association reviewed in brief the development of the last few years toward the control of public utilities, and compared it to the growth of the machinery of trade, now coming to a control of great lines of industry by corporations or individuals.

"Never before has it been possible to lay so direct a toll upon the public through the concentration of industrial power," he said. "The full significance of the attempt to check the growth and power of great combinations though the commerce clause of the constitution was scarcely perceived at the time of the enactment of the Sherman law, nor until successive interpretations of it had been given by the Supreme court."

"The history of nations indicates that a certain period of national development becomes necessary to interpose by legislation between the rapacity of individual greed and justice and fairness to the whole people. The right of every community to legislate respecting property affected by a public use was early recognized."

Mr. Wickersham referred to the Standard Oil and tobacco cases now waiting decision of the Supreme court.

Willinery Salesmen Attack Carwheel Headgear and Explain Why the Prices Are High.

Cincinnati, Oct. 9.—An appeal for smaller and cheaper millinery was made by Vice Mayor Galvin in welcoming the Millinery Traveling Men's association at its convention.

"Can you not do this?" said the mayor. "Yes, we can—not," responded the salesmen chorus, in whispers.

"The large hat has aggravated the congested street car problem," continued the mayor. "It is crowding the fans out of the ball parks, and need I say anything about the price?"

One thing the millinery salesmen are to talk about is the carwheel hat. They don't want it. It makes the selling of millinery by samples a cumbersome job. Millinery has gone up 50 per cent. in the last year, and a large part of the increased price, they contend, consists of the extra freight expenses big hats entail.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—With the jury under a heavy guard of detectives and bailiffs, Representative Charles A. White finished his direct testimony in the Lee O'Neil Browne trial and the cross-examination was begun by Attorney W. S. Forrest for the defense. The cross-examination went into the minutest details of White's life, as well as the charges of bribery in the Lorimer election on which the indictment is based.

The direct examination of White had shown only such material as had been exploited in print. The cross-examiner revealed, before ten minutes passed, that White was a fugitive from justice from the state of Tennessee, and that he was hiding incidents in his life that discredit his testimony.

Queries hurled at White by Attorney Forrest, startling White as much as they did the auditors, rousing State's Attorney John E. W. Wayman to indignation but futile objections, followed each other so fast that White could not recover from the shock of one till he had to meet the force of the next.

"Did you order a suit from H. L. Stecker of Louisville, Tenn.?" "Was it not delivered by a negro boy?"

"Was not a receipted bill delivered to you with the suit, and did you not tell the boy when you took the suit and the bill that you could call and pay for it?"

"And did you not fail to pay for it?" "Did not Stecker swear out a warrant for you in what he call a civil suit?"

Insurance Policy Referred To. "Did not Stecker and an officer of the law see you at the railroad station just as you were leaving Knoxville in 1902?"

"And did you not jump through a window?" "Didn't you take out an insurance policy about this time, pay for the premium with a promissory note and borrow $24 from the agent?"

"Didn't you see Stecker again in 1900 when you were in Knoxville, and didn't Stecker and an officer walk up to you and ask if you were not Charles A. White?"

"And didn't you deny your identity?" Gives White's Answers. White admitted that he had been accosted by Stecker and the officer, although he declared that he did not recall the incident of the negro messenger. He declined to answer when in 1909 the officer in Knoxville asked him if he were not White. He denied having run away from the officer and said that he thought his father might have paid Stecker's bill. He said that he had borrowed $20 from the insurance agent when he had taken out the policy, but had paid back the money with $4 interest. He insisted that he could not recall what his father's business had been from the time that he was fourteen years old.

White's answers were given in a room at the Hotel Hamilton, where he had been staying since his arrival in Knoxville. He was accompanied by his father, John H. White, who is now in the city on a visit.
