A Great Opportunity! But You Must Act Promptly!

Lyon & Healy's WASHBURN PIANO MUTUAL BENEFIT PURCHASE PLAN

Here is your opportunity to get a fine instrument at a special price. READ THIS PLAN CAREFULLY. To every purchaser of a Washburn Piano at retail on our wareroom floor during May, 1910, we shall allow $1 for each Washburn Piano sold by us at retail during the month up to the number of twenty-five; for the next Washburn Pianos sold up to fifty we shall allow 50 cents each; for the next Washburn Pianos sold up to one hundred we shall allow 25 cents each.

This is a bona-fide Mutual Benefit Allowance which we charge to advertising, because we believe it will be worth a large sum to us to introduce the latest models of the Washburn Piano in all sections of the city at once. To those who buy a Washburn Piano for cash we will send a check for the amount of the benefit June 1st, and to those who buy on time we will make a credit on their note or account. EXAMPLE—Thus, should we sell only twenty-five Washburn Pianos at retail during May, this benefit would amount to $25 ($1 on each of the first twenty-five Washburns sold); should we sell 50 Washburns it would amount to $37.50 (that is, Washburns sold); should we sell 100 Washburns it would amount to $50 (that is, $1 on the first 25 and 50 cents on the second 25); should we sell 175 Washburns this benefit would amount to $75. You would actually save that sum. The retail price of the Washburn Piano remains precisely the same as always—$275, $300, $325 and upward. $10 down will place one of these beautiful Washburns in your home. The balance may be paid by easy monthly installments.

PLEASE OBSERVE that this offer in no way savors of a Prize, or Puzzle Contest—but in the strictest sense of the word is a Straight-forward Business Proposition.

The Washburn Piano is made by the same factory organization that made the world-famous Washburn Mandolins and Guitars. It is owned by the stockholders of Lyon & Healy.

LAMB ONCE A JOURNALIST

At One Time He Was Actively Engaged on the Staff of the London Post.

In connection with Lord Glenesk's recently published history of the old-established London Journal, the Morning Post, it is interesting to recall the fact that at one time Charles Lamb was on its staff of contributors. This gentle essayist wrote largely for a column headed "Fashionable Intelligence;" in those days, as Lamb says, "every morning paper, as an essential retainer to its establishment, kept an author who was bound to furnish daily a quantum of witted paragraphs." It was in this capacity that Lamb was engaged on the Post; furthermore his contract stipulated that in "the chat of the day, scandal, but above all, dress" he should supply six paragraphs a day, not one of which was to exceed seven lines in length, and the payment for which was to be 15 cents each. In his essay "Newspapers Thirty-Five Years Ago," Lamb seems to have been rather pleased with the "chicks" of that he contributed to the press; we now find that "Dan Stuaert" his editor, entertained a different opinion as to their value. "As for good Charles Lamb," he said, "I never could make anything of his writings. Of politics he knew nothing; they were out of his line of reading and thought, and his drollery was rapid when given in short paragraphs fit for a newspaper."

HOW SHE GOT RID OF THEM

Discouraged Visits From Her Children by Teaching Them Verses From the Bible.

"What has become of those two children who visited you so often?" asked one West side woman of another. The other smiled discreetly. "They are the children of my niece, and she was making a convenience of me. Of course I love the children, but I never allow myself to become much of a victim of imposition. My niece is an extremely gay young widow, and she does not like to take care of her children. She is fond of shopping, matinees, afternoon teas and everything, in short, which takes her away from home, and she got into a habit of sending her children over to my house for me to take care of whenever she wished to get about. I decided it was time to break up the habit, for her own good and that of the children, as well as mine, so I did."

"I suppose that made your niece angry?"

"Oh, no; it couldn't. I never said anything about it. The last time the children came over I spent the afternoon teaching them verses from the Bible, and they didn't find it sufficient-entertaining. They never came back. Just how they managed to work out with their mother I do not know, but I suppose they struck or got off. Of course, she could not get to what I had done, and it was a very simple solution."

The Boss.

President McCrea of the Pennsylvania railroad, in his study of all classes of men who are under him, entertains a great admiration for the Irish foreman of a gang of laborers who went to any lengths to show his boss that he was the real boss. One day this foreman found that his gang had put a hand car on the track without his orders.

"Who put that hand car-r-r on the track?" he asked.

"We did, sor," one of the men answered respectfully.

"We'll," he said shortly, "take it off ag'in!"

The laborers did so with some difficulty.

"Now," said the foreman, "put it on ag'in!"—Popular Magazine.

Knew She Was Right.

An auction was announced of the library and household effects of a man who had once entertained in a lavish way, and among the persons who went to the sale were many who had enjoyed the fallen family's hospitality. When a set of after-dinner cups was put up one woman said: "There are only five of those, not six." The auctioneer consulted his catalogue and replied: "Thank you; you are right," and proceeded with the sale. Then the woman whispered to the one next to her: "I knew I was right, because my husband dropped one of that set the last time we dined there."
