There will be extra music at both services. The public is cordially invited.

Fort Sheridan Park, the former gay North Shore resort, the center of soldier and civilian revelry in the palm days when the lid was off, and before the mile and an eighth law was passed, is to be wiped out of existence. Otto R. Hansen, who acquired all the Frost land in Illinois, outside the right of way of the electric road, has sold the park site to the United States government, and it will become a part of the Fort Sheridan military reservation. The reservation is to be made into a huge triangle, as often stated in the News-Letter, that will wipe out half of the former business and saloon district in the eastside of Highwood's main street. Pat Crowe last used the park as part of his failed drink cure sanitarium.

One of the prettiest affairs of the season was the reception at which Miss Catherine Cushing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Cushing, made her debut at the Moraine Hotel Wednesday afternoon from four to six. The receiving line was in the drawing room and those receiving were Mrs. Cushing, Miss Cushing, Miss Theo Fessenden of New York, and Mrs. Scott of Chicago. Those assisting were Mrs. Stubbs, Mrs. Cregler, Miss Margot Cushing, Miss Marjory Small, Miss Helen Roberts, Miss Helen Kendrick, Miss Dorothy Hamlin, Miss Ethel Tatham, Miss Evangeline Wean and Miss Isabel Glark. The drawing room was beautifully decorated with bouquets of American Beauty roses, pink roses, violets and lilies of the valley, which were sent as gifts to the debutante. A dance for the young people followed in the evening.

"THANK YOU"

Petye hung his stocking with a dozen of other boys and girls in the Gads Hill district, and Santa Claus called on each one of them. Petye had a book and toys; Anna had a little tree with two tiny angels on it, and Mamie had a doll a marvellous doll, with eyes that would open and shut.

Santa Claus had other things, too, in his pack shoes and coats and dresses and mittens, and O, the Christmas dinners! Bessie's folks hadn't any fuel so he sent them a ton of coal. Gertrude's mother is in the hospital, and Gertrude expected to have bread and coffee for her Christmas dinner; but, dear me, what a feast Santa brought her, meat and potatoes and apples and such things as that! And then there are the parties, parties for the mothers and parties for the boys and girls, and the beautiful Christmas tree.

It was a happy Christmas for the Gads Hill folks a Christmas that they will be slow to forget.

Petye and Maxie and Mamie and Annie all send "Thank You" to the good people who sent Santa Claus over to this crowded smoke-blackened district.

"The Little Damsel" Comes To The Whitney Christmas Night Sunday

"The Little Damsel", the charming comedy of London's Bohemian life written by Monckton Hoffe, produced and presented by Henry W. Savage with whose record of successful production theatrogoers are always familiar will be the new attraction at the Whitney Opera House.

Its engagements is scheduled to begin next Sunday evening [Christmas Day] and to continue indefinitely. The enthusiasm with which "The Little Damsel" was received in London and New York was sufficiently fervid to warrant a belief in its cordial reception by the thousands of discriminating playgoers of Chicago and the vicinity. Mr. Savage and the management of the Whitney are anticipating in the "The Little Damsel's" appearance an event that will be memorable in this season's theatrical annals.

So well-versed a theatergoer as the Late King Edward of England found "The Little Damsel" and offering so much to his liking that upon three occasions within a year it was presented by royal command at Sandringham Castle, and in New York the Monckton Hoffe comedy was not only lauded as a piece of brilliant dramatic but was called "The best acted play in New York." As it will be offered at the
