Did His Work Too Well.

While it is no easy matter for a violin maker to rival the famous Stradivarius instruments, an American maker once did this, and did it in so effective a manner that experts pronounced his violin a genuine Stradivarius. The successful man was George Gemunder, who died some years ago. His remarkable ability as a maker of violins was known to many a distinguished player, such as Ole Bull, Reményi, and Wilhelmj, but he achieved—so runs the story—his greatest success at the last Paris exposition. To that exhibition he sent an imitation Stradivarius and to test its merits had it placed on exhibition as the genuine article. A committee of experts carefully examined the instrument and pronounced it a Stradivarius. So far Gemunder's triumph was complete, but now came a difficulty. When he claimed that it was not an old violin, but a new one, made by himself, the committee would not believe him. They declared that he had never made the instrument and pronounced him an impostor. He had done his work too well.

Moon Blindness.

A naval correspondent had written from Port of Spain, Trinidad, stating that in his travels he had come across many cases of moon blindness, caused by men sleeping with the moon shining upon them, such cases occurring principally in the tropics and the Mediterranean. Strange to say, adds the Trinidad correspondent, men so affected can see in daylight, but cannot do so when dusk sets in. Mr. Elgie further quotes from a communication made by a New Zealand correspondent to a weekly scientific journal. This correspondent was many years ago an apprentice on

The Liverpool ship Langdale, an East India trader. Once when the ship was between St. Helena and the line some of the crew slept on deck fully exposed to the glare of the brilliant moon. When they awoke three of them were quite moon blind. They had to be led about at night and the ropes put into their hands.—London Standard.

A Theodore Thomas Retort.

A characteristic story is told of one of the first rehearsals of the college choir (of the Cincinnati College of Music, at which Theodore Thomas had reprimanded some of the sopranos sharply for inattention. "He treats us as if we were members of his orchestra!" exclaimed an indignant singer to her next neighbor. Thomas overheard the remark and let it pass for the moment, but at the close of the rehearsal, as the performers were leaving the stage, he passed the lady in question and, turning to her, said very quietly, but with that biting sarcasm which those who knew him did not care to excite, "Madam, you will have to sing a great deal better than you do now before I shall treat you as I treat the members of my orchestra!"—Memoirs of Theodore Thomas.

Close Relationship.

The Duke of Norfolk once gave a great dinner party to a number of his neighbors. The duke was at the head of the table, and a man seated near him called out to one of his neighbors at the other end of the table: "Mr. Howard, will you drink a glass of wine with me? There was a connection between our families."
"With a great deal of pleasure," replied Mr. Howard, "though I don't know exactly what the connection is, but in this county there have been several marriages between neighbors."

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

There is everything here to make this home a model one, even to a sleeping porch in the second story. There is a full basement under the entire house. First story nine feet, second story eight feet. Size 24 by 26 feet over main part. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $2,150.

Upon receipt of $1 the publisher of this paper will supply Saxton's book of plans, entitled "American Dwellings." It contains 254 up to date designs of cottages, bungalows and residences costing from $1,000 to $6,000.

"Why, sir," resumed the gentleman, "your ancestor, Lord William Howard, hung up twenty-three out of twenty-seven of my family, and you must own that was a tie."—Kansas City Star.

Right to the Point.

To do even the most humble work worthily and well something more than blind mechanical service must be given. A young mistress once asked her cook about a certain recipe. "Just how much flour do you put in, Mary?" "Law, mum, you don't follow any rule; you just use your judgment." "But suppose you don't have any judgment?" returned the puzzled mistress. "Then don't cook," was the reply, succinct and to the point.

Depraved.

"What is your idea of classical music?"
"Well," replied Mr. Curox, "I don't profess to know much about it. But it always seems to me that when a man writes classical music he simply takes a tune and sees how much he can muss it up."—Washington Star.

An Invitation.

"What's the difference between a haunted house and a handsome man about to kiss you?" asked she coyly. "I give it up," he murmured, growing interested.

Mother.

Most of all the other beautiful things in life come by twos and threes, by dozens and hundreds! Plenty of roses, stars, sunsets, rainbows, brothers and sisters, aunts and cousins, but only one mother in all the wide world.—Kate Douglas Wiggin.

His Pleasures.

Latelywed—Guss I'll run out for a shave and hair cut. Mrs. Latelywed—Oh, darling, you promised never to leave me. Latelywed—But, dearest, I must have some pleasure.

Lame.

Cumso—Why didn't you come last week, as you promised?
Fangle—I sprained my ankle.
"That is a lame excuse."

The Problem of Force.

Whether the sum total of energy in existence is increasing or decreasing is unknown. Man may cause energy to change from one mode or form to another, but there is no antithesis nor increase. Energy may be created or destroyed by the Creator and the fact escape detection in this colossal universe, which has not, by any means, been fully explored.
The entire problem of force, or energy, is being studied in laboratories with renewed activity and with the aid of instruments of ever increasing accuracy. Space may hold wonders yet undetected. This energy in a form not previously known may reside there.

A number of recent experiments have revealed effects that are inexplicable by any laws known to science. These researches were made in light. The results of studies now being made are awaited with great interest. A new electronic theory of light may be formulated that is light may be radiating rays of excessively minute bodies at least 1,000 times less than the hydrogen atom.—New York American.

Two Versions.

Miss Jane Barlow's first contribution to literature was some verses that she sent to the Cornhill Magazine while still in her teens. She awaited the editor's reply with girlish eagerness. When it came it was a shock: "I have no use for your silly verses." She was, naturally, mortified and hurt. A plain rejection would have been bad enough. One worded so scornfully was sheer, unnecessary cruelty. She endured her misery in solitude for awhile—her family knew nothing of her literary venture—but her feelings became too much for her. She confessed and demanded sympathy.

But when she showed the letter the sprawling editorial hieroglyphics, read with more calmness and with the whole family to interpret, took on a surprisingly different significance. He had written: "I hope to use your pretty verses."—Youth's Companion.

Trousers.

A recently published work on the social conditions of the last century reminds us that trousers were invented by the Duke of Wellington, who was called upon to pay a heavy price for his temerity. Men, we are told, lashed themselves into fury at a garment that reduced all legs to a common level. The graduates of the universities were refused admission to dining hall and chapel with the detested trousers, while the Iron Duke himself was excluded from Almack's when he presented himself wearing his pet abominations. But the conqueror of Napoleon was not to be resisted in his far greater task of conquering public opinion. There was something about the pantaloons that commended them to the so called mind of the masses, and we have been wearing them ever since.

What She Wanted.

Lady in Shoe Store—These shoes pinch terribly. Haven't you anything larger? Salesman—You asked for No. 2's, madam. I can give you No. 3's or No. 4's or— Lady—The ideal I want something larger in No. 2's.

A Brand New Model of the Woods Electric

You simply must see the newest model of the Woods! Either come to the factory or phone Highland Park 119 for a demonstration appointment. It's the car so many Woods owners have been waiting for for five months. It's all ready now and—it's a gem!

We're proud of its low hung, graceful body, its speedy motor, its powerful, safe and sure brakes, its easy, awfully easy-riding springs and cushion tires. We're proud of every little detail in this smart, swift, dapper extension brougham and we want you to come and see it.
