HANDSOME LACE COVERS USED TO ENRICH SUMMER PARASOLS.

Chantilly Lace Parasol Cover

If you are so fortunate as to have one of the old fashioned lace covers for parasols you can again bring it into service, for lace covers are again smart for sunshades. The handsome cover of chantilly lace, which is shown here, is used over a parasol of white silk which has a border of parrot green.

THE MEDICINE CLOSET.

A MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT.

A girl may be too young to marry. She should wait awhile, remembering that she never will be too old to repent.

A bridal veil is a great thing to keep flies off baby.

The woman who does her level best for the man she marries is entitled to his respect and his kindest consideration.

That woman is great indeed whose youthful playmates admit her greatness. We are not without honor save in our own country.

Women were not made to act as policemen. Practice has so injured them to white lies that they would believe the story of every male captive and let him go his way in peace.

The devil has a hard time snaring the daughter of a really good, consistent mother.

Gossips would fare badly were it not for our indiscreet friends who manage to drop just enough of the truth to keep the busy-bodies' tongues wagging.

No man ever started out to burn money but found a lot of women ready with the matches.

Some Novel Dollies.

Breakfast sets of dollies are made after the manner of Chinese embroidery, with three shades of blue or three shades of purple, embroidered in bands, the darkest shade being used for the buttonhole edge. These dollies are particularly appropriate for breakfast sets and may be carried out in colors matching the china used for the breakfast table.

Boiling Asparagus.

Boiled asparagus may be served with white sauce or with melted butter. The new asparagus kettles are provided with racks on which the stalks can be laid. These are immersed in the water and boiled and then may be lifted out without breaking.

It Should Be Supplied With Emergency Remedies.

There are many simple curative agents that may be kept at hand for the slight indispositions that need only a little attention to keep them from becoming serious.

There should be rolls of cloth for binding up sprained limbs, mustard for baths and for plasters, peroxide of hydrogen for cuts or torn surfaces, tannic acid, to be dissolved in water as a gargle in cases of sore throat; menthol preparations to be rubbed on when there is external soreness, catnip and salt.

Salt is good in many ways, as a gargle, dissolved in water and drunk before going to bed, to regulate the bowels, to stop a hemorrhage and for many other things.

There should be a hot water bag of a bag of sand that can be heated. The latter is as effective as the hot water bag, but heavier. Bands of thick flannel are the best thing to be used for applying hot fomentations. Flaxseed meal for poultices is also a good remedy to keep at hand.

All poisons should be in three cornered bottles or provided with coras that have pins in them or are so cut that the instant one takes them in the hand their dangerous nature is known. These things should be kept always together where not a moment need be lost when one requires them.

Old handkerchiefs and napkins should be preserved for the home doctor's use. They are most valuable at times when applications are to be made or tender places are to be wiped. Of course absorbent cotton should be added to the stores.

The medicine closet should be put too high for any childish hands to reach it, even with the help of a chair. The chest may be simply a box with shelves, painted in keeping with the room where it is to be placed.

All prescriptions should be preserved in a book for use when again required. A druggist will always give a copy if requested unless some such drug as morphine is specified in it.

THE MAN WOMEN LIKE.

- The one who has coolness in a crowd.
- The one who can face a storm with a laugh.
- The one who can fight a fire or hunt a burglar without losing his head.
- The one who is brave without foolhardiness.
- The one who is not fussy about trifles.
- The one who quietly stands between her and the hard and dangerous things of life.
- The one whose chivalry is so perfect that he never snubs a woman no matter how well she may have deserved it.

CLEANING HOUSE.

Forethought and Method Save Work and Worry.

The spring campaign of house cleaning may be simplified by using method and forethought.

It is always wise to provide in advance the necessary tools and utensils, such as nails and hammer, picture cords, brushes, brooms, mops, cloths, paper, paint, varnish, shelf papers, soaps, soda, ammonia, floor and furniture polish, etc.

The next thing to do is to begin at the top of the house and turn out all the cupboards and drawers, relining these with clean paper and eliminating superfluous or otherwise useless articles.

Then wash all curtains, bed valances, covers, blinds, etc., the advantage of this being that when the rooms are scrubbed out ever, thing is ready to be put back again, clean and bright, and so complete the whole effect.

It is advisable to do one room at a time where practical. If painters and paper hangers are necessary then one must try and fit in the work as methodically as possible to avoid a muddle.

It is policy to have little cooking to do, so that the maids may get on quickly. Therefore provide a good joint, pies, etc., to last a few days.

When turning out a room the best way to go about it is as follows:

Lift the carpet, having arranged for it to be beaten and returned in readiness for relaying.

Remove all pictures and ornaments. Wash these thoroughly and pack the ornaments in a clothes basket, which should be well covered and kept free from dust.

The ceilings and walls should be well cleaned.

If a bedroom is being done the mattresses should be taken into the open air and beaten thoroughly. The bedsteads should be rubbed thoroughly with a cloth wet with kerosene. This brightens and cleans the bedstead. The picture frames and glass must next be well washed. No soda must be used for this work. White paint is much improved if rubbed with a little dry whiting and then well cleaned with a leather. The outside frames of the windows should also be done.

The windows are next polished. A little ammonia in the water gives a brilliant luster to glass of any kind.

The furniture then requires to be washed with a little warm water and vinegar to remove all greasy marks and finally polished.

Everything is now ready to be replaced. The carpet is relaid. If it is surrounded by linoleum or stained boards these are cleaned and polished with floor polish.

MANY FASCINATING LACES FOR THE SUMMER GIRL'S NECK.

ROBESPIERRE COLLAR AND LACE JABOT

TWO novelties in summer neckwear are shown here. One is the graceful Robespierre collar, shown with a coat suit of gray and white mixture cloth. The little jabot of net and lace is finished with a row of black velvet buttons and a bow of black velvet ribbon.

Come, Take a Ride In the Woods Electric

Here's the busiest electric in town. We're using it to demonstrate what a masterpiece it is in construction and design. So many enthusiasts are eager to try it that we are compelled to make all demonstrations by appointment. Just telephone Highland Park 119, let us arrange a satisfactory time to send for you and bring you to the factory—then we'll do all the rest!

All the talk in the world can't tell you the wonderfully good points about the Woods Electric as convincingly as a ride in it. And even that ride can't demonstrate the remarkable durability of the Woods. Nothing short of years of hard service can show you what positive value the Woods will stand! The second-hand value of Woods cars is as much of an asset as the first-hand value of some other makes. The best for the money is always a Woods.

Send Ambulance and Doctor

"A LITTLE boy has just been knocked down by a team in front of our house. Please send the ambulance and a doctor. I'm afraid he's very badly hurt."

Such a telephone message, received at the police station, sends the ambulance and police flying to the relief of the sufferer.
