FOUGHT WITH KNIVES.

Sensational Duel in Arkansas' First State Legislature.

During the session of the first legislature that convened after Arkansas became a state, the new capitol, then still in an uncompleted condition, received a baptism of blood when, in 1837, J. J. Anthony, representative from Randolph county, was slain in a knife duel by John Wilson, speaker of the house of representatives, during an open session of the house.

In the course of a debate on a trivial matter Anthony offered a resolution, which was construed as a thrust at Speaker Wilson. The speaker became enraged and ordered Anthony to take his seat. Anthony refused to do so. This enraged Wilson still more, and, leaving the chair, he advanced down the aisle toward Anthony, drawing a knife as he did so. Anthony stated he had acted in jest, but Wilson refused to be pacified.

Anthony then also drew a knife and stepped from behind his desk to await Wilson's onslaught. Grandison D. Royston, who sat near by, thrust a chair between the combatants, but the latter struck at each other over the obstacle. Suddenly Anthony's knife was struck from his hand, and he was left defenseless. Wilson raised the chair and plunked his knife into Anthony's body, Anthony expiring almost instantly.

Speaker Wilson was immediately expelled from the house and Grandison D. Royston was elected speaker in his place. Wilson was indicted, but when tried in Saline county on a charge of venue he was acquitted on the ground of excusable homicide. The killing and the subsequent acquittal of Wilson caused a tremendous sensation throughout the state.—Farm and Ranch.

Look Beyond the Frames.
 We should laugh if a man said he went to an art gallery to see the picture frames. Yet that is how many go through life and it is little wonder that they are soon tired.

Time appears long only to those who don't know how to use it.

Ft. Sheridan Notes

Fort Sheridan is the finest military post in the United States, according to Major General Wood, chief of staff of the United States army who visited the post Wednesday. It was the first time he had seen it. "My visit is not for the purpose of making a military inspection of the soldiers and buildings, but for the purpose of learning the sentiment of the people in the vicinity of the posts toward the army," he said. "I wish only to see what will be required in the way of improvements for next year. Conditions are splendid at Fort Sheridan. It is the finest post I have visited. The grounds are well laid out, the equipment is splendid and the site is an ideal one for the soldiers. Its proximity to the lake makes it a delightful place for barracks."

One of the best attended dancing parties ever held at the post was that given by the athletic council of the 27th Infantry Saturday night. Lieut. and Mrs. Langwill led the grand march which was participated in by about one hundred and fifty couples. Light refreshments were served on the balcony during the evening. The funds raised will be used to encourage athletics among the men of the regiment.
