DEAD LETTERS.

I feel another man. Improved in temper As the direct result of duty done (A most unusual thing—O si sic semper!). I'll back my morals now with any one.

I feel my cabin's spirit burst its fetters. I feel it soar aloft like billy-o. Because I've polished off a load of letters— Answered a dozen at a single go.

Unanswered letters are a constant menace. I find they worry me an awful lot. They simply spoil by back hand drive at tennis. And utterly upset my mashie shot.

Lucky it is my conscience never wallows in idle ease, but keeps severely spry. Urging on me the manly course as follows.

Which other people might do well to try: When letters have been left six months or longer Crammed in the rack I answer them, cry quits With conscience, make my moral fiber stronger— By simply tearing up the things to bits. —Punch.

Dangerous Talk in George's Presence. "Mother, I wish you wouldn't mention dishwashing when George is calling on me."

"Why not, indeed?" "I don't like it. It sounds common."

"Common, eh? We have to eat, don't we?" "Of course!"

"And George knows we eat and use dishes?" "That's very true."

"And George also knows that dishes have to be washed, therefore somebody has to wash them?"

"But mother?" "What now?"

"If you keep on talking about it George may discover that you make father wipe them, and he may think the same thing is coming to him if he should propose to me."—Detroit Free

A MODERN VIEW OF MARRIAGE.

It is not necessary that the ideal wife should be a house-keeper. There is a too general confusion between the duties and obligations of marriage and the demands of household management. A woman may love a man enough to marry him, to make him her closest companion for life, without caring to become his cook. And I do not see that this reservation unites her for wifehood. In the unsystematized condition of home work at present the lowest position in an office offers higher development than the so called domestic duties. The trouble with household work is that we have no standards and no competition. A wife may be an excellent cook, or a second rate one, or a hopeless incompetent. She is what she is, and there exists no incentive to make her better. Her work is not judged by an ideal or by the work of another. Therefore household labor has fallen to a very low plane, and no married woman should be thrust back to it if she has made a success at something else. What constitutes the real marriage between a man and a woman is the love they bear each other, not the piano and dining room chairs which they share together.—Mrs. Edwin Bjorkman.

"THE MAN HIGHER UP" TO BROADWAY

Leaves Olympic Theatre November 9th to be Followed by Henry W. Savage's Laugh Success, "The Million"

Chicago's playgoing public must bid farewell to the first distinctive dramatic success of the new theatrical season, Edith Ellis' play of love and statecraft, "The Man Higher Up." The last performance of this patronage winning production will take place at the Olympic Theatre on Saturday evening, November 9. The high favor with which it was received, as attested by the generous office receipts, prompted a demand for its immediate appearance on Broadway. On this account the engagement cannot be prolonged any later than the date mentioned, although there is every indication that "The Man Higher Up" could be maintained as the all-time run feature at the Olympic Theatre.

The notable successor will be Henry W. Savage's laugh production, "The Million," which was the farce-hit of New York all last season. Not since "Excess Me," have world-weary theatregoers been offered a high class entertainment containing such incessant and tumultuous laughter as follows the progress of the delightful play-farce. The frenzied scramble after a missing lottery ticket which is the keynote of the action, leads from one ludicrous situation to another with incredible rapidity. It is by the author of "The Pink Lady" and "Oh! Delphine." Mr. Savage's original New York cast of comedians will be seen in the Chicago presentation.
