Points for Mothers

The Rainy Day Closet.

It is almost time to lay away materials for the "rainy day closet," a device intended for the alleviation of the care of mothers. Interest is now centering in school playthings, are tossed aside for the more serious business of life, but they should not be tossed so far that they cannot be found again in case of need. Into the "rainy day closet" should go the toys from which the interest has temporarily departed, together with the accumulation of summer magazines, to be cut out and pasted in scrapbooks later, and specimens of rock and shells brought home from the seashore. This closet should contain story books for children of all ages, riddle books, old picture postals, clever advertisements which come to the house and many other things valuable to grown-ups, but dear to the heart of childhood.

Furniture catalogues appeal particularly to little people, and mismatched decks of cards sorted over can absorb a good bit of time. A few good new games should be among the collections of this wonderful room. Rolls of colored crepe paper, a supply of paper napkins, costing almost nothing, with the assistance of pins, will make the grandest kind of fancy costumes and with their aid all kinds of dramatic performances are possible. Paper for making flowers, clay for molding purposes, bits of pretty wall paper for covering boxes and all medium sized firm boxes should find their way to this treasure house.

Envelopes from which the used stamps are to be cut will afford some boy amusement. All the odds and ends of lead pencils and crayons can go into the closet and some day find a use. There are sure to be "shut in" days, many of them, when all this apparent "trash" will be welcomed.

In families where the "rainy day closet" has become an institution the room is kept carefully locked, so that its opening on rainy days or sick days is looked upon as an event of great importance. The articles are carefully arranged on shelves or in drawers, and an older sister, or even an "old maid aunt"—for such there still be—is appointed custodian. Among the rules and regulations pasted on the inside of the door is one to the effect that no one must ask for a new article to play with inside an hour, though articles may be amicably interchanged among the group of little folks who have been cut off by the weather from their customary amusements.

Who feels the hearts of all men
In his breast
And knows their strength or weakness through his own.

FORMATION OF HABITS.

In the child instinct predominates; in the adult habit rules supreme. Up to a late period in life we are continually forming habits. Habits are either spontaneous or artificial. If we do not control and supervise our habits they will form themselves spontaneously through the mere repetition of acts and emotions. On the other hand, nothing is more certain than that by going systematically to work with sufficient will power we may establish good habits and even substitute good habits for bad ones. Arnold Bennett, the novelist, has put the matter better than any one else I know of. "There is not a man," he says, "who reads these lines but has in this detail or that proved in himself that the will forcing the brain to repeat the same action again and again can modify the shape of his character as a sculptor modifies the shape of damp clay."—W. H. Maxwell, Superintendent of New York Schools.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS CRITICISMS.

Every country is responsible in the long run, somehow and at some time, for the windows broken by its press. The bill is presented some day or other in the ill humor of the other country. We can easily be influenced by love and good will—too easily perhaps—but most assuredly not by threats. We Germans fear God, but nothing else in the world, and it is the fear of God that makes us love and cherish peace.—Bismarck.

Milday's Mirror

The New Complexion.
"What a splendid color you have!" said one of the girls who met at a fashionable soda fountain after not having seen each other for a month or so. "Have you been away on your vacation?"
"Oh, no," the other replied. "I've been at home right along."
"It certainly agrees with you. You're not rouged?" the other asked tentatively.
The second girl laughed. "Not a suspicion," she replied, rubbing her cheek with her handkerchief, under which the blood came mantling to the spot in a charming color. "It's all the new way I wash my face. I wash my face in ice."
"Ice? You mean ice water?" the envious one said.
"No, I mean ice, and I'll tell you how I do it. One reason so many of us have no color in our faces is because our circulations are bad. In spite of what the critics say of us, women seldom do anything to bring the blood to their cheeks, so I studied out the following plan. Every morning, after I have had my morning exercise to wake me up, I take a small piece of ice and wash my face with it. I go over every spot of my face and neck with it until the piece is entirely gone. As I begin with a piece about half the size of my fist you can see I get a nice chilling. When the ice is melted I rub my face briskly with a Turkish towel until it is quite dry.
"My dear, you feel fine. It is awfully cooling for the first place, and it makes you feel very lively. For a minute or two you are red, like a frost bitten apple; then that fades away into the nicest color. You see, the ice not only helps the circulation, but it acts like a tonic on the muscles and takes away that distressing sagging of the face that so many of us have."
"Well," said the other girl, "I've been paying $2 a bottle for a face tonic, as it is called, and it hasn't done for me what your humble piece of ice has for you. After this I'm going to look in my cosmetic in the refrigerator."

To Whiten the Teeth.
To whiten the teeth an excellent powder is made by mixing one ounce of chloride of lime, ten ounces of pumice, half ounce of Peruvia, and one teaspoonful of myrrh. This should be used once a day until the teeth are sufficiently white, when it best to discontinue it for an ordinary tooth paste.

To remove tartar, the disgusting and obstinate yellow discoloration which forms at the base of the teeth, try dipping the brush in powdered magnesia and rubbing it up and down over the teeth as well as across. Dental should be drawn between the teeth at least twice a week to keep them free from food obstructions, such as bits of meat gristle or the seeds of berries.

One of the most satisfactory and effective mouth washes is peroxide of hydrogen. Many object to its use because of the peculiar sensation known as "spitting cotton," present only when peroxide is particularly active. Counteract this effect by neutralizing the wash with another made by dissolving common baking soda in water. Peroxide of hydrogen is both a deodorant and an antiseptic and is one of the dispensable remedies to be kept in every medicine chest.

Sleep and Beauty.

Sleep is the generator of energy, is the cooling station of time, we store enough fuel to take through the hours to come. When the supply of fuel runs low we are compelled to trundle along at half speed. Our limbs feel as if they were chained to prevent free action, our mind sluggish, slow to grasp a situation and slower to respond. Let us have the foe of beauty of the radiant face. The real beauty sleep comes between midnight and ends when the day young. This is an nature intended, work prevents following the same hours for rest things should be arranged that sleep will be undisturbed by the noise and activity of the day. If eight hours' sleep are impossible, make up for the lost rest by sleeping ten hours the next night. Insomnia is often the result of irregularly sleeping hours.
Do not neglect to have plenty fresh air in the room devoted to rest and sleep.
