The Man Across the Street

The editor of the Waukegan Sun says: "It's rather hard as usual, to get used to writing '1913'—nobody finds it out more than the newspaper men." We wonder how often he's been called upon to get used to writing "1913".

The Man Across the Street would like to say something about the man who leaves his horse standing unblanketed while he attends to duties (?) in nearby stores where there is a nice warm fire but his thoughts are all unprintable; at least the paper would be unamiable if they were printed. If you have ever seen an automobile with a huge fur robe covering its engine standing next to a poor, shivering, unblanketed horse you can probably appreciate what the thoughts of The Man Across the Street are.

Evidently the Head Officers of the Modern Woodmen of America appreciate the value of advertising for they continue to advise the local camp organizations of that society to advertise in the local newspapers, stating that "the local paper is the best medium". Where the field will warrant the officers recommend the use of display advertising. A snappy paragraph once a week will get results, in the opinion of Head Consul A. R. Talbot, but the display ad will attract greater attention.

The Head Officers know that they have something to sell, the same as the manufacturer or the local merchant. In their case it is a good line of insurance for the benefit of all members of the home and they know that the best place to advertise it is in the home and that the local newspaper, which prints all the home news, is the one medium which is read by all the members of that home; the boys and girls are interested in the news of their school affairs, parties, etc., the debutante in the social column, the mother in the news of her clubs, the father in the business affairs of his home city, while all, in a measure, are interested in everything in the local paper and that, therefore, it is the best advertising medium for the man or concern with something to sell to the family or the members of the family.

We Know Your Answer

Suppose some friend should ask the following question: "Is the best too good?" We know your answer. Then suppose you had tried every polish on the market including NU-FINISH and a friend asked which you like best. We know your answer. It would be the same as hundreds of other enthusiastic NU-FINISH users would give if asked the same question.

NU-FINISH

is a marvelous dusting-cleaning, polishing liquid. With it you just dust in the usual way—but what a difference? No dust flying in the room to settle down again. Every speck is taken up and taken out—not just stirred up! And, at the same time, with no extra work, your furniture, woodwork and hardwood floors are cleaned and polished. Try a 2c bottle.

It will be welcome news to many here that Mr. Frederick Dole will establish a catering business at the corner of East Central Avenue and Sheridan Road to open on January 15. For a long time such a place has been in demand and it is very satisfactory that a man with Mr. Dole's excellent record as the steward of the Highland Park club, where he was exceptionally popular and noted for his executive ability, and later as caterer and proprietor of the Laurel apartments, the growth in his business forcing him to retire from his position at the club, is now prepared to meet the many demands which will doubtless be made for his services.

The many old friends and acquaintances of Mrs. C. P. Goodson, wife of the former pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian church, enjoyed a rare musical program on Sunday when Mrs. Columbus Polk Goodson, who was the week-end guest of Mrs. Ward Knapp, sang at the morning and the evening services. To quote the remark made by a member of the congregation, "Mrs. Goodson's rendering of the beautiful hymns by Robert Harkness, "Bearing His Cross" and "Shadows" was a sermon in itself." That the original copies of these hymns are in the possession of Mr. Frederick M. Steele is of interest for Mr. Steele's love of hymnology is well known and he has the largest collection of original copies in the world with signatures and a great many photographs, gifts of the composers. Mr. Steele told of seeing Mr. Harkness sit at the piano and compose the wonderful hymns of which he is the composer of the music and frequently of the words. One evening while a guest in Mr. Steele's home Mr. Harkness on the spur of the moment composed three of his most beautiful hymns: At present he is with Mr. Wibur Chapman on an Australian tour. Mrs. Goodson left here to join her husband at Springfield and sing in special Evangelistic services which he is conducting. After which she will come to Waukegan to sing, the latter part of this month. The present home of Mr. and Mrs. Goodson is at Waukegan, Ind.
