Woman's World

Miss Bessie Youkum is a Modern Diana.

MISS BESSIE YOUKUM.

Diana, the famous goddess of the chase, in her adventures with bow and arrow never exceeded in prowess and daring the achievements of Miss Bessie Youkum, daughter of B. P. Youkum, the millionaire president of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad.

This young lady is well known not only for her beauty and social graces, but as a sportswoman of no mean ability. While hunting recently in Texas she and her guide were attacked by seven ferocious wild dogs.

Deserted by the guide, who fled panic stricken, Miss Youkum leaped from her horse, dropped on the ground, aimed a fraction of a moment and fired while the first wild dog was several yards away. Two more of the dogs were killed by Miss Youkum's gun with as many shots.

When her rifle failed her she ran for the gun dropped by her guide. With this she rounded up the rest of the dogs.

Suffragists on Fifteen Day March.
Several thousand enthusiasts in the cause of "votes for women" of New York state are on a fifteen day march to Albany from New York city. Miss Rosalie Jones, an ardent suffragist, is the leading spirit of the movement. The object is to reach Governor Evert Ruizer in time for him to put a suffragist petition in his inaugural message of Jan. 1.

Filling the Carbonic Siphon at Home.
One of the new devices shown in the progressive household departments of the shops is a recharging outfit by means of which any household gas in two minutes convert ordinary water or other liquids into the carbonized state. A glass jar inserted in wire to make the operation quite safe in the hands of experimenters—a package of carbonizing capsules and a metal arrangement for connecting the capsules with the siphon are included in the outfit. One has only to fill the siphon up to an indicated point with water, milk, liquors or other liquids, insert the capsules in its metal holder and turn a screw and the carbonation is completed.

Billiard Parlor for Women.
A billiard parlor for women has been opened in Kansas City by Mrs. Bertina May King, the champion woman billiard player. It has fifteen tables and female attendants. Speaking of her enterprise, Mrs. King said: "Women will be glad to learn the great indoor game if they are provided proper places. Few if any of the public rooms are exclusive enough for women. I propose to make my place one of refinement and exclusion, where women can learn and enjoy billiards and feel free to come and go. As an evidence of the benefit of the game as an exercise I can say that since I have played billiards I have rarely experienced a day's illness."

Tea Making Hints.
Use water which has just come to a boil, but which has not been boiled before or allowed to simmer on the stove for some time.
Warm the teapot by pouring in hot water a few minutes before the tea is required and allow it to remain in teapot until the tea is made.
Allow one teaspoonful of tea to each person, with some extra one. Pour boiling water and allow to stand for three to five minutes.
Fill the teapot or the tea will cool rapidly.

Inaugural Ball.
It is probable that for the first time in history the inaugural ball this year will be held in the rotunda of the United States capital underneath the dome, which is surmounted by the Goddess of Liberty. The pension on rent, where the inaugural balls are usually held, is not available any longer because of the valuable documents and papers stored there, which would be jeopardized if fire should break out.

USE OF WHO OR WHOM.

Where Grammar Bunks Up Against Idiom and Gets a Jolt.

The employment of the nominative "who" for the accusative in certain forms of interrogation has become so imbedded in common usage that resort, even now, to the strictly orthodox practice frequently requires, on the part of educated men, positive effort or prolonged training. It somehow does not seem natural. In the past assuredly this nominative form, where precise grammar would require the accusative, turns up with almost invariable regularity in works which set out to represent colloquial speech.

"Who is it from?" says the mother in Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice," to her daughter, who has just received a letter. "Who is it like?" says the heroine of "Jane Eyre" to St. John Rivers as she shows him the picture of Rosamund Oliver. Such examples could be multiplied by hundreds. There are cases, indeed, when the use of "whom" would strike upon the ears of most of us as painfully pedantic.

"Who the devil is he talking to?" says Sir Lucius O'Trigger in Sheridan's "Rivals," as he notices Captain Absolute wallowing. To tolerate "whom" in place of "who" in such a sentence as the last would require the speaker to be so thoroughly steeped in grammar that the sense of traditional usage, which has been hardening into idiom, has at last been completely overcome. That height of linguistic virtue few of us there are who attain.—Thomas R. Lounsbury in Harper's Magazine.

FURY OF A SPIDER.

An Insect Tragedy as Seen Through a Magnifying Glass.

One day, rummaging in an old desk, I found a magnifying glass. It was September, and in a sunny, weed ridden corner of the garden I had discovered a big black and gold spider who had strung her web between two tall burdocks and was doing a thriving business in grasshoppers.

Seated on the ground, I now surveyed her through the glass, for an hour as she hung in the middle of her engine of destruction. When I touched the net with my finger she swung frantically to and fro, prompted doubtless by some instinct of self preservation, but otherwise was as motionless as if carved in jet.

Grasshoppers were not very plentiful as yet, but at last a large green fellow flew plump into the toils, the spines on his legs that had so often discouraged sweet music becoming entangled. Instantly the crafty spider was all alive. Darting upon her victim, she took her station above him, and hanging by two legs, seized him in her other six and rolled him round and round, smothering him in a band of silver silk until he was as helpless as a mummy, and then she bit him in a dozen places with fangs oozing with poison.

At the spectacle of her evil eyes glittering with the lust of killing, magnified as they were by the glass, I turned sick and rolled over on my face among the weeds and lay for a long time miserably hurt.—Atlantic Monthly.

Strange Freak of Memory.

There is a strange story of how Sir Walter Scott, producing "The Bride of Lammermoor" during illness, was afterward found to have forgotten entirely what he had thus created. According to James Ballantyne, the book was written and published before Mr. Scott was able to rise from his bed, and he assured me when it was first put into his hands in a complete shape that he did not recollect a single incident, character or conversation it contained. The original incidents of the story, which he had known from boyhood, he still remembered, but he knew no more about the story he had written than he did before he began to write or even think about writing it. These facts were corroborated by Mr. Lockhart, Sir Walter Scott's son-in-law and biographer, so that they are placed beyond question.

Founder of the Japanese Navy.

The founder of the Japanese navy was an Englishman named Will Adams, who went to the eastern seas as pilot of a Dutch fleet in 1598 and was cast away in Japan a couple of years later. He became a Japanese noble and constructor of the navy to the tycoon, but was never allowed to return to England. He died about twenty years afterward, very ingeniously leaving half his property to his wife and family in England and half his property to his wife and family in Japan. After his death he was deified.—Exchange.

Some Big Numbers.

If you fill a tiny vessel one centimeter cube with hydrogen corpuscles you can place therein, in round numbers, five hundred and twenty-five octillions of them. If these corpuscles are a loved to run out of the vessel at the rate of 1,000 per second it will require seventeen quintillions of years to empty it.

One of the Ways.

"Who was that seedy individual I saw you give a dollar to?"
"An old literary friend of mine; author of 'Ten Thousand Ways of Making Money.'"

Mind and Matter.

Teacher—Is there any connection between mind and matter? Small Boy—Yes; if a boy doesn't mind there'll be something the matter.—Chicago News.

Men are born to succeed, not to fail.—Thoreau.
