The Hills Have a Wonder House

You admire it every time you visit them—the harmonious lighting, the clean and orderly appearance of everything, the always-ready personal conveniences, the atmosphere of comfort and luxury.

"Hill is a lucky dog," you say; but did you ever stop to think how easy you could be as fortunate?

The electricity that does so much for his comfort is obtained from the same wires that pass by your own home. It operates his lamps, flatirons, sewing machines motors, fans and other useful electric heating and cooking devices.

You can have it at slight cost—let us discuss wiring with you.

Stuffed Cookies.

Stuffed cookies are somewhat of a novelty, and a very pleasing one. They are quite dainty enough to occupy an honorable place on the afternoon tea table, and they are guaranteed great popularity, particularly among the young folks and the masculine contingent. The ingredients for the cookies are a cupful of white sugar, half a cupful of butter, an egg, half a cupful of milk, one teaspoonful vanilla and three and one-half cupfuls of flour with which two teaspoonfuls of baking powder have been sifted. Make a filling of half a cupful white sugar, half a cupful water, a cupful of chopped raisins, the juice of a lemon and a teaspoonful flour. Cook this until it becomes thick, and it will bear much watching during the process. Roll the cookie dough very thin, as usual, and cut into small rounds; place these in pans, put a teaspoonful of the filling in the center of each and place another cookie gently on top. Bake in a moderately hot oven.
