These maps are for free distribution and are sent to any one requesting them.

Following the custom of many Eastern hotels, the Moraine is arranging to introduce a series of tea and tango parties this season, the first one of which will be given on the afternoon of the 21st, to be followed in the evening by the first regular dance of the season. The tango party will be under the direction of an experienced teacher with whom arrangements may be made for lessons in dancing. If these affairs strike a popular desire they will be given as frequently as needed.

Receives Valuable Gift

The Evanston Historical society has received a valuable gift from Mr. F. A. Rozene of Chicago, in the shape of a set of Harper's Weekly, covering the period of the Civil war. The volumes are filled with illustrations and portraits, as well as much printed matter pertaining to the history of the Civil war, and are a most important addition to the treasures of the society. The society already has the bound volumes of the New York Tribune covering the same period, and with these volumes of Harper's Weekly, together with a great number of other volumes pertaining to the Civil war, the society may be said to possess one of the most valuable collections of the kind in the country.—Lake Shore News.

The three essentials of existence are food, clothing and shelter. The life of the two former is measureable. The latter may be temporary or permanent. When permanent it constitutes the most reliable basis of security. In times of panic when stocks and bonds go tumbling like a flimsy wall the security for the real estate mortgage remains unimpaired because it is founded on one of the essentials of existence.
