A BUNGALOW OF INDIVIDUALITY.

Design 744, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

This bungalow has a large living room, small hall and a good sized coat closet across the front and a piazza that is ten feet square, which can be screened in in the summer and shaded in in the winter if one desires. MINNESOTA WINS

"State Rate" Case Is Lost by the Railroads.

A POINT WON BY ONE LINE

Minnesota Wins in United States Supreme Court in One of the Greatest of Modern Legal Struggles—Federal Power Comes First, but State Can Also Regulate.

Minnesota won a substantial victory in the supreme court when in the Minnesota state rate case Justice Hughes for the court held that the rates of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad were confiscatory and unconstitutional, but that the rates of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern were valid.

The decision was a victory for the state on the interstate commerce phases of the controversy and upon the confiscatory features, with the exception of the portion affecting the Minneapolis and St. Louis.

What the Cases Are. The so-called "state rate" cases have presented to the supreme court one of the momentous problems of the decade.

In general terms, this group of cases called upon the court to decide two questions. One was whether the states in passing maximum freight and 2-cent passenger laws had unduly interfered with interstate commerce. The other was whether those laws confiscated the property of the railroads by requiring them to transact business at a loss.

The group consisted of forty-five cases. All arose out of legislation enacted by state legislatures about 1907, or just after the federal government had passed the Hepburn rate law. The forty-five cases concerned directly the laws in six states—Missouri, Minnesota, Kentucky, Oregon, Arkansas and West Virginia. Similar litigation arose in Alabama, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and South Dakota. In all, it was said that seventy-six suits in federal courts depended upon the decision in the forty-five cases before the supreme court.

How the Suits Started.

The Minnesota cases arose out of suits by stockholders of the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroads against the companies to enjoin them from obeying the maximum freight and 2-cent passenger laws as unconstitutional, and against the state officials to enjoin them from enforcing the laws. Judge Sanborn of the United States circuit court for Minnesota held the laws unconstitutional, of a confiscatory nature, and that they burdened interstate commerce. The three suits were appealed to the supreme court.

JACK JOHNSON GETS ONE YEAR SENTENCE

Also Must Pay Fine of $1,000 Appeal Granted.

John J. Johnson, the celebrated negro pugilist, must serve a year and a day in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth and pay a fine of $1,000 for violating the Mann white slave act. Federal Judge Carpenter pronounced sentence late in the afternoon after denying the appeal for a new trial at Chicago.

Benjamin Bachrach, attorney for Johnson, immediately served notice of carrying the case to the appellate court on a writ of error, and Judge Carpenter suspended execution of sentence for two weeks, pending the preparation of the necessary papers. Johnson was given his freedom on the $20,000 bail furnished at the time of indictment.

WOOD ACQUITTED BY JURY

Disagree on Atteaux—Collins Guilty on Two Counts.

At Boston, Mass., after deliberating throughout the entire night the jury acquitted President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company of the charge of conspiracy to injure the textile strikers at Lawrence by "planting" dynamite. A disagreement in the case of Frederick E. Atteaux was reported. Dennis J. Collins, who turned state's evidence, was found guilty on two counts and not guilty on the other four counts of the indictment.

Wood, Atteaux and Collins were indicted for alleged conspiracy to "plant" dynamite at Lawrence to discredit the textile strikers during the industrial troubles of 1912.
