PRAISE COMMUNITY HOUSE PLAN

Juvenile Association

The article by F. S. Munro in the July 17th issue of the Press carries a most valuable proposal. In the readjustment of modern life the home gives way to institutions and few have so good influence as the socalled community house. Here on a common ground people can meet as in the old "meeting houses" of ante-Revolutionary fame, and work out together their social destiny. Here will be opportunity for educational recreational and moral training of a practical nature.

Wrong seems social oftentimes and oftentimes is, no doubt, but in the main it is an individualistic preying creature, using social groupings as hunting grounds merely. When social Apple-ducking contest, boys, free groups therefore get their eyes open much of wrong will be done away.

The community house will do much Girls race on beach, 16 and under, toward realizing the social goal of service for all in all lines, and the Juvenile Protective Association urges its members to co-operate in this good movement and give it success.
