Festine lente: Make haste slowly. — A whole philosophy is contained in these few words which have come down to us as the embodied wisdom of antiquity. They serve as a safe guide in the commonplace as well as the exalted affairs of life. They apply with equal force to the business of the individual and of nations. Progress is made and success is attained only slowly as a little child begins to walk step by step. So too are fortunes made, saving on saving, slowly but surely. We assist you to save.
