TALE OF A TIGHTWAD.

Every Man Should Take to Heart the Moral It Points.

We once knew a man who was too stingy to take the newspaper in his home town and always went over to borrow his neighbor's paper.

One evening he sent his son over to borrow the paper, and while the son was on the way he ran into a large stand of books and in a few minutes his face looked like a summer squash.

Hearing the agonized cries of the son, the father ran to his assistance and in doing so ran into a married wife taking a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a $4 pair of trousers.

The old man took advantage of the hole in the fence and into the crowd and killed himself eating green corn. Hearing the groans, the stinky man's wife ran out of the house, upsetting a four gallon can full of corn into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole flock. She slipped on the corn and fell downstairs, breaking her leg and a $10 set of false teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled corn into the parlor and ruined a $10 parlor carpet. Hearing the excitement the daughter, armed with the hired man, taking the family savings bank with them.

The moral is that every man should be a subscriber to his home newspaper.

THE GOLDEN HORSESHOE.

That Was the First Order Founded in This Country.

How many persons have ever heard of the Order of the Golden Horseshoe, the first order founded in America?

In 1724, when Virginia extended from the Atlantic into the unknown west, few of her colonists had crossed the Blue Ridge or the Alleghenies. So full of dangers from savages and wild beasts and so full of natural difficulties, the passage of these terrible heights that Governor Spotswood, setting out to discover a pass, looked on the expedition as so hazardous that he took with him a guard of "soldiers, gentlemen and pioneers," armed and carrying provisions. These scaled the pass with great hardships and perils and returned after the governor had cut the name of King George in the rocks on the highest peak.

He then constituted the society, or order, of the Golden Horseshoe. Each man who had scaled this high pass was made a member of it, and to each one he presented a golden horseshoe. On the side was inscribed in Latin, "So It Pleases Him to Cross Mountains."

Any man thereafter who could prove that he had read with his own eyes the name of the king on the height was entitled to become a member of this order.—Chicago Record Herald.

Economical Hand Bag.

"I want you to see my lovely new shopping bag," said a certain lady to a caller the other afternoon. "My husband gave it to me for my birthday, and it's simply grand. And it's so economical! You see, you open this and there are two compartments, and you open the compartment on this side and there is a little pocket in that, and you open the little pocket and there is a cute little pocketbook for change, with one side partitioned off for street car tickets."

"I see," said the caller. "But why do you call it economical?"

"Why, it takes so long to open all the things and get to your street car tickets that by the time you do whoever's with you has paid your fare."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Running No Risk.

"What," asks the maiden aunt, "going to marry that Mr. Newnun? Why, you hardly know the man, Imogene. In the few days you have been acquainted with him you cannot possibly have learned anything of his family or antecedents or habits or personal circumstances."

"That is true, Aunt Keturah. But you have always told me that to woman who knows anything about a man will marry him."

A Genius.

"Oh, doctor, I feel so discouraged—whoooping cough, measles, mumps and croup, one after the other, and now my child is ill again!"

"Why, the boy's a genius!"

"A genius?"

"Yes—infinite capacity for taking pains, you know."—London Tit-Bits.

Soft.

"Should a man shave up or down?" asked a youthful clerk, and the barber replied with a grin:

"That depends. When I shave you, for instance, I always shave down."

Encouragement.

Elm Place School Notes.

Forty small persons, who had never been to school before were enrolled in the first grade at Elm Place Monday morning and there are a number more soon to follow. Nearly all the grades showed a decided increase in enrollment. There were in all 427 children present when school opened, which is a larger number than that of the total enrollment for September last year. Since Monday new pupils have been coming in and when all those absent on vacation return and the primary roll is complete the enrollment for this September will probably be 50 or 35 in excess of that one year ago.

In response to the health notice sent out last week by the Secretary of the Board of Education a number of pupils brought with them health certificates from local physicians. The teachers are watching for suspicious coughs and if a possessor of such a cough has no health certificate he is sent home for medical examination. The old notion about the contagious diseases of children was that every child had to have such diseases and the sooner it happened and was over with the better. For the benefit of those who still hold to this notion there should be the broadest advertisement of the fact that the most intelligent physicians believe that practically all of the diseases that run epidemic among children can and should be avoided. Every resource of preventive medicine is now being used to check their spread. It remains to awaken some of the parents to their positive duty to keep their children in strict quarantine whenever contagious diseases are in their homes whether such diseases are subject to municipal quarantine measures or not. If this had been done during the past few weeks there would not be the general complaint that children with whooping cough attended moving picture shows and public picnics and were taken on railroad journeys. Some parents report that they had to maintain close quarantine over their children who had never had the disease so that their neighbors' children who had the disease might roam at will about the neighborhood. This is a great injustice. Indeed it is not unfair to call it a crime to expose children to contagion of any kind.
