MODERNIZED THE ANGEL

Mounted on Ball Bearings, It Now Acts as a Weather Vane.

There are many kinds of angels hanging in style from those who bring about in the Bible to those who bring out talent on the stage. It has remained, however, for a writer in the American Machinist to discover a new type of the seraphic assortment. This angel is "ball bearing" and entirely unlike the common or garden variety of angels. It stands on top of the famous tower known as the Campanile di San Marco, in Venice, and swings to the wind like a weather vane. The statue of the angel San Marco, which surveyed the old city of Lagoon since the sixteenth century, was found but little damaged among the ruins after the collapse of the tower. It was repaired and now stands again on the lofty height, but is supported in a very different manner from the old, for it now rests on modern ball bearings. This method of mounting allows the statue to be turned around a vertical axis by the wind, so that it swings automatically into such a position that the angel always presents the smallest surface to the wind or storm. If one considers that the large wings of the angel, which are eleven feet high, project straight backward, it may be imagined that the difference of the wind pressure is considerable, whether the wind blows against the small front surface or against the side exposing the large face of the wings.

MYSTERY FLAGS.

Trophies That Are Souvenirs of Long Forgotten Battles.

In the midst of that wonderful collection of the souvenirs of battle that are on permanent exhibition in Trophy Hall at the Naval Academy in Annapolis are the nation's unknown trophies. Flags that were captured in now forgotten engagements are hung in the cases side by side with those whose glorious history is known. Two of these souvenirs of forgotten battles are British flags. One is a Jack marked Avon and nothing more; the other is the ensign of a warship and is marked Berford. From the condition of both of these flags it is supposed that they date back to the war of 1812, but history gives no record of ships bearing those names being sent to American waters by Great Britain. Another of the mystery flags is the "S14" flag. In great white figures this number appears on a field of blue, and the entire flag is bordered with red. From some engagement in the war with the British pirates the flag that the officers at Annapolis came to call the "house flag" seems to have come. Yet to one knows where that battle was fought or under what circumstances of heroic sacrifice it was added to the long list of the trophies of our naval victories.—Christian Herald.

Primrose For Memory.
The primrose of old was credited with a medicinal use, as well as a superstitious value. Even now in some country parts a decoction of primrose leaves is supposed to restore a failing memory. In 1854, when Catherine wrote her "London Dispensary," the primrose was regarded as an almost universal panacea, curing "convulsions, falling sickness, palsies, etc." and strengthening "the brain, senses and memory exceedingly." And even the healthy did not disdain to eat it, for primrose was once a popular Lammas-day delicacy.—Family Doctor.

Time Enough.
"Some women make me very tired," said the first agitator. "I asked one woman if she believed in woman suffrage, and she didn't know; she'd have to ask her husband."
"Did you find out how long she had been married?" asked the second agitator.
"Yes. Three weeks."
"Oh, never mind; I guess she'll do to call on again in a year or so."—New

ENGLAND'S CURIOUS WELL.

Its Water Never at the Same Level For Two Consecutive Minutes.

Two miles out from Settle, on the main road between that town and Ingleton, Yorkshire, England, there is to be found one of the most curious of natural phenomena in the shape of the famous ebbing and flowing well of Giggleswick. A small, unpretentious little structure, scarcely to be distinguished from the ordinary trough of water to be seen on many of our country roads, it is yet one of the most quiet and fascinating spectacles one could hope to see. As the name implies, the well has the nature of a tide. It ebbs and flows continually, though by no means with regularity. Sometimes the privileged traveler will see the oblong stone basin filled with clear water; then, even as he gazes into its pellucid depths, the water gradually sinks until the trough is half empty, or it may be more. There is barely time to wonder at this strange thing ere, with a rush and a whirl, the trough is again full. The ebb and flow continue with more or less marked effect, and the water is never at the same level for two consecutive minutes. Sometimes the outflow has scarcely begun before the basin again fills, but at other times the trough is almost emptied.—Wide World Magazine.

When Women Know Not Golf.
A correspondent sends the Glasgow Herald some anecdotes of that period, not so long ago, when women knew nothing of golf. One lady, making sympathetic conversation at dinner, said to a keen golfer: "I often see you in your red coat. Do you need many dogs to play golf?" A younger lady said she knew exactly how the game was played: "They get what they call a caddy to hunt about in the grass till they find a round stone, and then they hit it into a rabbit hole." A third lady, who had evidently enjoyed a nearer view of the game, said: "It is played by two men. One is a gentleman and the other is a common man. The common man sticks a ball on a lump of dirt, and the gentleman knocks it off."—Westminster Gazette.

An Indignant Artist.
Haydon, the painter, was much disgusted when he visited London in 1846 at the time when two of his finest pictures were being shown at the Egyptian hall, and the public thronged into another room where General Tom Thumb was on view. "They rush by thousands to see Tom Thumb," wrote the disappointed painter in his diary. "Their eyes are open, but their sense is shut. It is an insanity, a rabies, a madness, a furor, a dream." Another entry later on runs: "Tom Thumb had 12,000 people last week. R. R. Haydon 183½ (the half a little girl). Exquisite taste of the English people!"

SPRINGFIELD—Governor Edward Dunne gave out a small list of additional appointments as follows: Thomas Casey of Rock Island, as a member of the barbers' state board of examiners to succeed T. C. Trent; Mrs. Vivtor E. Bender, Springfield; Mrs. Robert Hall Wiles, and Mrs. Francis W. Walker of Chicago, as commissioners to arrange for the designing, construction, and erection of memorial hall at the capitol of a suitable bronze tablet in memory of Illinois soldiers in the war of 1812.

SPRINGFIELD—With the coming aid of women voters, officers of the Anti-Saloon league predict that in November six Illinois counties will be added to the thirty now listed as being without a saloon. "Wet" and "dry" elections will be held No. 5 in the seventeen counties in the southern part of the state which are under precinct instead of township organization, elections in the latter class of counties being held in April.

SPRINGFIELD—Governor E. F. Dunne honored the requisition of the governor of Michigan for the return to that state of James Garita and Thomas B. Flannigan, the policeman who seized Charles Schwartzberg and his wife at Grand Haven and took them to Chicago to testify for the grand jury.

CHICAGO—Michael W. McDermott, American breaststroke swimmer, champion, lost the Lipton cup race for the Susan II, but he lost it saving the life of a four-year-old child which had fallen in the lake from a motorboat following the race.

CHICAGO—Black smoke and fire sent a score of families in flight from their homes early in the day when fire that caused a loss of $100,000 partly destroyed the building of the Atkins & Freund department store at 4805-4811 South Ashland avenue.

LELAND—The Democrats held a meeting here to elect a Democratic candidate for postmaster, Grover Dubson and Miss Edna Braumiller were the two candidates. Mr. Dubson was chosen by one vote over Miss Braumiller.
