R In the drug business it is impossible to take too much pains. Anything that isn't just right isn't right at all. In the fight against disease the doctor must be armed with weapons that cannot fail him. The druggist's duty doesn't end with buying pure drugs from reputable houses. His work must be perfect; he must keep abreast of the times; he must read and study. All of his life he must be a student. And he must take nothing for granted.

We read of cases where excellent eye prescriptions cause serious inflammation. Having been put up from best materials by men whose skill is acknowledged, and an investigation proves that impurities in the medicine came from putting it in a bottle that had not been properly washed.

Every bottle of eye water that comes from Schumacher's goes into a bottle that has been packed and wrapped by itself and has never been used previously. The bottle is then sterilized thoroughly, then washed out with distilled water. We don't think, guess or imagine anything. WE KNOW that all these precautions are taken.

You know it when you deal with an up-to-the-minute druggist. Schumacher probably puts up as many eye prescriptions as any other druggist on the North Shore. Above we have told you some of the reasons. Let us have your prescription business.

We treat you with courtesy and try to give you good service and prompt delivery.

A colonial dinner, under the auspices of the Woman's Civic Club, will be given this Friday evening in the Ravinia Village House. Colonial decorations of American flags and appropriate pictures in keeping with George Washington's birthday will be used. Four couples in colonial costume will dance the minuet after which they will come down from the stage and lead the guests in the grand march. This will be followed by general dancing.

Invitations have been extended to members of the Trinity church by Rev. P. C. Wolcott and the vestry for an informal reception to be held at the Parish house next Monday evening, Feb. 23rd. Musical selections will be furnished by Prof. Alexander P. Gray, baritone, and Mr. Benbow of New York, tenor, Mr. Sidney Dietsch, accompanist. A monologue will be read by Mrs. Daniel Cobb. American flags and pictures of George Martha Washington will be used in decorating the room. Refreshments will be served.

At the card party given by W. C. O. F. at library hall Wednesday evening there were about one hundred guests present. Mrs. Thomas Hart and Mr. Patrick Cawley received first prizes and Mrs. Andrew Erickson and Cleophas Berube received consolation prizes.

Woman's Civic Club

Last Friday afternoon Miss Ella S. Stewart addressed the women on the subject "Social Gains of the new Suffrage Law." We were happy to have with us several friends from Highland Park, and were especially glad to have been able to offer them such splendid talent for their entertainment and our general education, for Miss Stewart spoke to great purpose regarding the privilege and duty of women in exercising their right of suffrage. She dwelt most strongly on the great responsibility and exacting duty given to us, and from the close following of her remarks and intense interest shown on the faces of those present it is sure her time was well spent and that we can more intelligently and earnestly do our public service for having had the good fortune to be addressed by Miss Stewart.

OLD TIME PORTRAITS.

Does There Exist a Reliable Painting of the Poet Burns?

Was this the face that launched a thousand ships And burnt the toplean towers of Ilion? asks Mariow, writing of the vision of golden Helen. A similar question has been asked in regard to the diverging portraits of Mary Stuart. Was this the face that turned so many heads some 350 years ago? The queen of Scots was assuredly bewitching. Knox admits it; Knollys asserts it; Ruthven lost his heart to her in Lochleven castle; whoever saw her desired her. Yet not one of Mary's portraits represents her as beautiful. Romney has sufficiently explained the fascination of Lady Hamilton for Nelson. But Mary Stuart's charm remains unexplained by her portraits.

And what about Burns? The point I wish to make is that old portrait painters are not to be depended on for strict fidelity to their originals. The mere fact that they differ so much in their representations of the same subject is enough to prove it. In regard to Burns, the question bears a twofold aspect. Not only do the portraits of the poet disagree with one another, but even that which by its frequent reproduction has tacitly been accepted as the truest representation cannot have been exactly like him when it was done. I refer, of course, to the familiar Nasmyth head and bust, painted in 1787, when Burns was carrying all before him on his first visit to Edinburgh.—J. Cutburt Hadden in Scribner's.

REAL ESTATE LEASES.

Origin of the Custom of Making Rent-als For 99 or 999 Years.

Whence originated the use of the old term in leases, 99 or 999 years? In other days leases and mortgages in possession of real estate for 100 or 1,000 years denoted the same as an annual rental, retaining a reversion for the last year of the original term. The object of this proceeding was to be found in the unwillingness of the under tenant to become bound to the performance of the covenant contained in the original grant and also in the importance to the lessor of a reversionary interest without which, under the old English practice, he could not recover his rent by distress.

Sometimes this reversion was for only three days or even for only one day, but usually in long terms the last year was retained. Out of this came the popular notion that the law provided this restraint, and hence leases were made for 99 or 999 years, when there was no reason whatever for any such odd period of time.

In England there was in special cases a restraint on corporations or ecclesiastical persons prohibiting the demise of lands belonging to them to the impoverishment of their successors for a term beyond 100 years and such leases were accordingly made for 99 years.—Harper's Weekly.

Spotting a Stock.

"Stocks are valuable in keeping with the demand for them," said a Wall street man, "and the demand is often created by queer methods. A few years ago a man who is well known in the street was overloaded with a certain stock. He told his wife there was money in it and that it would soon have a big rise. Next day the good woman gave the tip to the woman who came daily to massage her. The latter had many wealthy clients, to whom she gave the get-rich-quick tip. The stock became popular, the man sold out, and the masseuse who set the ball in motion never knew why she received a present of extraordinary value at Christmas time from her client."

"From which one?" "Why, from the one who said it was a 'good thing' of course." The others probably discharged her.—New York Tribune.

Hyderabad.

The state of Hyderabad, located about midway between Madras and Bombay, in the south-central part of India, with a population about equal to that of New York and Massachusetts combined and with an area of 82,008 square miles (just about the same area as Kansas), is, generally speaking, the most important native state in India in population, wealth and potential resources. It has many wild creatures, including tigers and leopards in abundance and occasionally bison and elephants. There are also wild dogs, antelope, hyenas, wolves, jackals and bears.

He Still Had It.

"Look here, you swindler," roared the owner of the suburban property to the real estate man. "When you sold me this house, didn't you say that in three months I wouldn't part with it for $10,000?" "Certainly," said the real estate dealer calmly, "and you haven't, have you?"

A Little Too Much.

"This is what I call adding insult to injury."

"What's the trouble?" "An editor not only returns my manuscript, but he wants me to subscribe for his paper."—Birmingham Age-Herald.
